

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

The farmers are now plowing at the lake.

Lee Evans is striping wagons this week.

Edward Berner is now working in the paint shop.

Wilbur Martin is doing some fine work on the farm.

Mr. Bowen has planted some geraniums in front of Brewer Hall.

There is now a large force of men working on the new gymnasium.

John Peazzoni did some fine welding on an axle. John is a fine workman.

Orin French is getting to be a good horse-shoer. He does the driving now.

The Blacksmiths have another wagon ironed off and ready for the paint shop.

Maud Lowry is working in the dining hall and is a good hall girl for Mrs. Cox.

Levi Sortor and George Flett are the wood-haulers on the G. O. and P. line this week.

The girls are all glad that the domestic science classes are taking their turns cooking again.

The wagon makers are busy repairing bureaus for the small girls, home and McBride Hall.

Merl Poland is again working in the blacksmith shop after being out for six months or a year.

Miss Brown is going into the domestic science department on Tuesdays and Thursdays when the senior class girls are making bread so she can learn how to make it.

Thos. Williams and Geo. Horn are ironing a wagon bed. Mr. Mann says they are learning fast.

Tom Powers is painting himself a bat in the paint shop. Tom is getting along very nicely in his trade.

The farmers are glad to see that they are soon to have a wagon shed. They are working at it right along.

Violet Berner is having a pretty suit made for her and we are anxious to see her in it.

John Peazzoni is working at forge No. 1 and is doing all of the hard forging now and will soon finish his trade.

Mr. Swartz and his boys are leveling the ground north of the school building for the school gardens this summer.

Joe Dillstrom is fixing the spraying pump for the gardeners this week and Edward Ainsworth is fixing the hose.

Tillie Lewis says she will be glad when she quits working in the dining hall, so she can work in the laundry.

The painters are hard at work painting different parts of furniture this week for the various buildings and departments.

Katie Henry is making Eva Simons a pretty dress of which Eva is very proud and we all hope to see her wear it soon.

The painters have finished painting and varnishing the chairs and stools which were collected from different buildings.

The sewing room girls have finished the McBride Hall girls' dresses and have begun on the small girls'. They are looking forward to a picnic when they finish them.