SELF-STUDY.

It is well for a person, especially a student, to take a glance backward now and then to see what progress has been made in life. A good, fair-minded review of the past by one's self is a capital thing, especially if one is in earnest about it and does it with an honest desire to discover past errors and faults and avoid or correct them in future.

Select a time when you are free from all petty annoyances and in the seclusion of your own room think of the past and the possibilities of the future. You may ennoble your own life and add to the joy and comfort of others. An inner consciousness of one's fitness and worth is the greatest source of consolation. Remember this Chemawa boys and girls.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

The boys are trimming the rose bushes around Brewer Hall; and they look very nice.

Ruther Jake is getting along nicely in the harness shop. He is making a pair of throat latches.

Mr. Goudge, of the Willamette University School of Theology, probably will make his last visit next Sunday.

If you want to hear good singing come around to the harness shop. Alden Clark is the boy for you.

The carpenters have started to remodel the old printing office which will be used for employes' quarters.

The gardeners have been hauling about 400 bushels of potatoes to the car to be shipped to San Francisco.

The carpenters are now putting the windows in the new gymnasium, having finished putting in all the frames.

The farmers have been busy the past week hauling logs from the clover patch and have placed them in the corner by the vetch.

William Burke is the chief of the shoe shop now-a-days, and he says he will be first-class in repairing shoes by next week.

A few basting threads from the tailor shop: The tailors are happy in the work of cleaning and repairing the uniforms for the second baseball team, as well as making three new pairs of Knickerbockers and four new shirts. Now it is left to the personnel of the second team to christen our efforts and to make them look truly representative of Chemawa by returning to school with a victory over the St. Paul team. Not doing so we will feel our efforts were not appreciated, so let the second team play hard.
