MANDOLIN CLUB PARTY.

Saturday evening the Girls' Mandolin Club gave a party in the Auditorium. The invited guests were employe and student friends and numbered about forty. About half after seven o'clock they commenced to congregate at the Auditorium and shortly after there was evidence of merriment on every hand.

There was no set program for the evening, everything being to a certain extent impromptu. Mrs. Cox, who acted as chaperon for the girls, favored those present with a splendid elocutionary number. The Mandolin Club played several selections, and there were games played by way of entertainment.

Before the hour for departure most delicious refreshments were served and were partaken of to the accompaniment of a hum of conversation and merry-making. At the close of a memorable evening all departed for their quarters declaring the Mandolin Club girls admirable hostesses.
