

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

The farmers started to cut hay down at the lake Thursday.

The painters are now painting the Sanitorium buildings.

The mess of new potatoes on Thursday for dinner was fine.

Geo. Washoe helps Mr. Smith a great deal in assisting him as disciplinarian.

Mr. Fickle and his sixth grade were out in the hay field Thursday pitching hay.

The tailor boys are working all day now, on account of making the graduating suits.

The sewing room girls are very busy this week trying to finish the summer uniforms before vacation.

The dining hall girls had the pleasure nearly every day this week of hulling peas in the shade of Chemawa's pines.

Ed. Evans takes great interest in his trade as a carpenter. At present he is working with Mr. Mudge on the open air Sanitorium.

After working outside for a few days, George Goss is back again at his bench in the harness shop. He is now making a set of heavy harness.

CUTTING TABLE CLIPPINGS.

We are pleased to be able to report favorable progress upon the work in hand—the suits for the young gentlemen graduates of 1908. We are thankful for this opportunity to test our preparedness to handle a garment from the beginning and trust that when this task is finished we will be wiser and better prepared tradesmen than when we commenced. That will be a step forward in the right way and in no other way can anything be accomplished—one must do the work himself. To watch some other person do the work, no matter how simple and easy it looks, is of no practical benefit to us. In order to create confidence in ourselves we must perform the task ourselves—in no other way is progress possible.

A proffer of help was made an apprentice, but in refusing the same he said: "I want to be wholly responsible for this piece of work, so do not want any help." Such an expression indicated a determination to do, and do his best. Nothing more is necessary, nothing more is possible, nothing more is asked. Make your greatest effort in whatever you do and you must succeed, and those who have tried to assist in your advancement will rejoice in your success and feel well repaid for the hours they have spent in your assistance.

PUPILS' ITEMS

The songs sung by Mrs. Campbell at her cottage on Monday night were enjoyed by all who were near enough to hear them.—E. N.

It would be a great help to have the roses along Rose Avenue marked so that the pupils can learn the names of the different kinds of roses.—A. M.

The employees of Chemawa bought a cup, which will be presented to the best drilled company. There will be an exhibition drill on commencement.—F. S.
