

LOCALS

Listen! You'll hear wedding bells again before long.

Mrs. Chalcraft writes that she is enjoying camp life very much.

Mrs. Campbell and Miss Irene spent last Saturday in Portland.

Ruther Jake is now working in the harness shop and he is doing fine.

Still Chemawa continues to grow. Our enrollments are proof of the statement.

Mrs. Rictor, a former employee of Chemawa, was here visiting on Monday.

A number of the boys of the first grade are going to Chautauqua, Saturday.

Lewis Sanderson, who has been in the hospital for three weeks, is up and around again.

Jennie Rosenberger is making Annie and Lucy Sexton pretty white dresses for Commencement.

Lena Olesen, the sister of our Mike, arrived Sunday from Parkland, Washington and was admitted.

Frank Ward, after being away for about five years, returned to Chemawa, Saturday from Rainier, Oregon.

The appearance of the S. P. Depot has been improved by the carload of granite sand lately placed around the building.

Messrs. Bowen, industrial teacher, Woodin, the painter, and Venter, the harness maker, spent Saturday afternoon in the Capital City.

According to the theory of the boys of the fifth and sixth grades, they are entitled to a picnic because of the work they have done in the hay.

Miss Irene Campbell has gone to Portland to take part in the Irvington Tennis Tournament. Some of the most prominent tennis players on the Pacific Coast will play.

The Chemawa Indian School band gave a sacred concert at 4 o'clock. This organization has become part and parcel of the Chautauqua at Gladstone, and its part of the entertainment this year is better by far than ever before.--Oregonian.

In one of the local periodicals of this state the remark about Chemawa's dimly lighted tepee, may have seemed proper. But now the same institution can gaze with envy at Chemawa's gymnasium, one of the few called the best in the Northwest.

Academic

The boys and girls like to look at the pictures on the wall of the third grade school room.

Miss Earlougher is reading to the girls and boys in the third grade the story of "Black Beauty."

New window shades have been put up in all the school rooms. They are a great improvement to the building.

The students enjoyed the talk last Sunday evening very much and we hope that the minister will come again.

Great preparations are being made for the Commencement exercises this year, and the students who are to take part in it are practicing very hard to have it better than it has ever been before.

Miss Royer has a bouquet of nasturtiums which was picked from the seventh and eighth grades' gardens. The pansies and roses are blooming nicely. Their geraniums are also growing nicely.
