

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

Bart Voutrin is now working in the garden.

The gardeners are very busy at work this week.

Emily Moss is now working in the dining hall.

Henry Flemming is now one of Mrs. Newcomb's sweepers.

Amos Smoker and Frank Souvigner are now working on the farm.

Mr. Smith and a number of boys cleaned the yard on Monday afternoon.

The farmers started to cut the hay at the lower farm Tuesday morning.

The dairymen and farmers are through cutting vetch, having filled both silos.

Mr. Westley took a number of school boys to pick peas last Monday morning.

Mr. Venter and his boys were putting up window blinds in the school building Monday.

Mr. Swartz now has a large force of hay-makers, both in the morning and afternoon.

The girls of the large sewing room have nearly all the dresses made for commencement.

Haynes Bateman was repairing a pair of shoes for Gussie Cameron last Wednesday morning.

Mary Campbell has hemstitched herself a very pretty handkerchief. She has also made a neat dress for Lizzie Dahl.

The farmers finished cutting hay at the lake last Thursday morning. For the last two days they have been working at the Claggett farm.

The baker boys reported having turned out 800 loaves daily lately.

New braces were recently being put on the one horse lawn mower.

On Thursday morning Martin Sampson made handles for the scraper.

Bessie Williams is one of the best waitresses they have in the dining hall.

Leonora Rainville is working in the dining hall. She likes the work very much.

Allah Madison is one of the dining hall girls this week. She is a dish washer.

Henry Franklin is one of the painter boys. We hope he will thoroughly learn his trade.

Johnnie Darnell jigged for some cherries in front of the office last Wednesday. He did fine.

Last Wednesday when Ida Johnson was in Salem Lily Stensgar acted as dining hall sergeant.

Barney Vincent and Edward Berner are still busy cutting hay. These two are quite industrious.

Last Thursday morning Orin French shod Mr. Westley's horse. Orin is busy the most part of the time.

Movable fountains were being placed on different parts of the campus to keep the lawns in continual growth.

Milton George and Harry Covington were putting a ceiling on the front porch in the new gymnasium Tuesday.

Haynes Bateman repaired David Graham's baseball shoes before the team went to play in the Salem Cherry Fair yesterday morning.

A number of boys were digging a ditch and laying water pipes for the purpose of sprinkling the ball ground Wednesday afternoon.