

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

BY PUPILS

Lee Evans is again in the paint shop. Nels Charles is helping in the kitchen. Ruth B. ewer helps in the dining room.

Dorothy Talbot is one of Miss Skipton's best workers.

Dennis Harnden is firing at the power house this week.

Elmer Plucker has entered the engineering department.

Davis Miller has entered the harness-making department.

The blacksmiths are now oiling the floor of the new gym.

Elmer Reed is working in the garden, and he likes the work.

Wm. Burke is back in the harness shop doing his usual good work.

Tonny Reed, Alex Arquette and Edward Evans repaired the dairy barn.

Bill Baily is hauling coal this week from the car to the school building.

Joaquin Meadows repaired a spring wagon for the farm, putting in a set of new axles.

The harnessmakers put shoulder pads on the jerseys for members of the football team.

The laundry has a very good detail in the afternoon, and a fairly good one in the forenoon.

Joaquin Meadows is storing away the year's supply of steel and iron at the blacksmith shop.

The contractor has a large crew laying brick on the new power house and is making rapid progress.

The blacksmithing department has received a large supply of steel and iron. A supply of coal is expected soon.

Haines Bateman improved the looks of the lawns in front of the industrial building by raking up the leaves.

The plumbers have been busy the past week putting in a new water pipe from the tower to the power house.

Ida Johnson has been Miss Skipton's sergeant for a long time. She is going on a different detail soon and Miss Skipton hates to lose her because she is a good worker.

CUTTING TABLE CLIPPINGS

We are pleased to report a favorable progress in all our departments. Albert LaChapelle, who is in charge of the alteration department, is doing well. Patsy Barrett, Willie Luke and Arthur Van Pelt are very promising apprentices and we trust they will become useful boys in the trouser department in the near future.

Robert Dundas and Gideon Hanbury, as members of our staff of coat-makers, are proving themselves to be all that was expected of them and we look forward to the time when they will be found at the cutting table among the best of them.

We are pleased to number among our new apprentices, Ralph Copeland, from Grande Ronde agency, and Willis Gibson; both young and full of much promise that will prove helpful to themselves and their associates.

The Tailor Shop join in extending a vote of thanks to the football team for the splendid victory over the Oregon University second team last Saturday.
