

LOCALS

Miss Evelyn Woods is stopping in Salem now. She attends the Capital Business College during the day and sings at Ye Liberty Theatre in the evenings.

Reuben Saunders, Philip Sorahan, William Ingram, and Tracey Hatch were visitors from Salem on Sunday. These young men are former students of Chemawa and have good positions in Salem. Mr. Saunders is employed in Watt Shipp's Sporting goods store; Mr. Sorahan is tailoring for G. W. Johnson's Clothing Store; Mr. Ingram is baker at the Asylum farm, and Mr. Hatch is working for the Wells Fargo Express Company.

A delightful impromptu housewarming party, in the nature of a surprise, was given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gordon and friends to Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Fickle, who are now domiciled in their new housekeeping quarters. The evening was spent playing games, etc., and later on all the guests indulged in popping corn and a good old fashioned taffy pull. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartholow and daughter Pearl, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gordon and little Donna Wilson, Mrs. Royer, Misses Katharine Brown, Cora Steponeck, Caroline Koester, Katherine Earlongher, Genevieve Royer, Florence Hutchinson.

Rev. Goudge's talk, "Our Philippine Cousins", illustrated with stereopticon views Sunday evening in Chapel was very interesting and instructive, showing the excellent work the Government and the Missionaries have done in that new field since Uncle Sam has had charge of it. The new public school system is very successful and the natives seem to embrace the opportunity of acquiring knowledge and leaving their old customs of paganism and idolatry for the more enlightening "Word of God". It is a large field and much work is to be done, but the prospect ahead is bright, as the young natives give promise of being Faithful Helpers among their own people in spreading the Gospel, and improving conditions generally.

* O. A. C. SECOND NEXT.

Today we meet the strong O. A. C. second. The Oregon Agricultural College seems destined to take the North West championship and it is said that her second team is "nearly as good as her first", hence the result of this game has been looked forward to with some apprehension by Chemawa's light but speedy team.
