

Athletic

The wrestlers are improving rapidly and expect to give some exhibition matches in a short time.

The Big Z athletic club have purchased new outfits which have a very neat appearance. Their colors are blue and gold.

The Amateur Athletic club have accepted the challenge issued by the big Z's for a game of basketball. Date to be settled by managers. Levi Sortor, Capt.

The first and second basketball teams held a meeting last week and decided on practice hours and made other preparations for the benefit of the school and team.

Dennis Harnden offers to throw any three students at the school in fifteen minutes, flying falls counted. He will also match any of his clubmen against any student in their class who are not of the club.

The sixth grade boys challenge any grade below the Seniors-Juniors for a game of basketball to be played at some open date. We want the game, or games, played before the student body. Wm. Burke, Manager; Wallace Farrow Capt. [Evidently not in the Senior-Junior class.]

YUKON EXPOSITION NOTES.

Visitors to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition this summer will be treated gratis with unexcelled scenery and views. This scenery is so situated that a stranger in Seattle not only does not have to look for it but on the contrary, has it actually thrust upon his gaze.

Standing upon any one of the city's numerous hills in clear weather, one is greeted on the east and west by glorious, snow-capped mountain ranges. To the north, Mt. Baker rears aloft in brilliant whiteness; to the south, far away, is seen Mt. Hood of Oregon; while to the south-east, not sixty miles distant, Mt. Rainier stands regal, dazzling with his 14,000 feet of pearly whiteness. Such are seldom found.

Only a few hours' ride from the city will take an interested visitor to Snoqualmie Falls, one of the highest in the world. The Snoqualmie river tumbles over a precipice and plunges down 280 feet into a seething cauldron below. Framed by Nature's choicest decoration this falls, to the lover of beauty, is magnificent. To the more practical mind, also it presents an interesting side. Back of and underneath the falls are hidden the great dynamos, from whose ceaseless whirring comes the light for the great city of Seattle.

The engineers are very busy this week, working every minute they can, to have things ready to put the boiler fronts in when they come.
