Miss Leader spent Sunday with her parents at Troutdale.

The Nonpareils are busy practicing for their entertainment.

Miss Alice Chalcraft has been practicing tennis on the new court.

The song by Miss Baum at the band concert was a great treat to all Chemawans. Miss Baum has a rich and beautiful voice, which she uses with great skill.

Mrs. M. A. Cooper and daughter, Miss Bertha, came over from McMinnville to be in attendance at the Dillstrom-Evans nuptials on Monday evening and to visit with relatives and friends.

Harry Queachpalma visited William Westley, who lives in the country, and when he came back he brought two large bunches of flowers, one for his brother, Paul, and one for himself.

The track men are now getting in condition for their two meets with Pacific University and McMinnville College. The farmers have put the track in fairly good condition and a number of boys can be seen out on the track each evening.

The American regrets exceedingly to record the death of Rev. Sheldon Jackson, one of the pioneers of the educational movement for the Alaskan Indians. The Doctor was an earnest and energetic worker for his people. Peace to his ashes.

Dr. DeVeghne of the Educational Bureau of the Interior Department spent a day at the school this week while enroute to Washington from Alaska. The doctor has been connected with the Bureau for about five years and evinces great interest in the education of the Alaskan Indians.

The school had a very pleasant visit from Mr. Gale Seaman of the International Bureau of Colleges of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Seaman addressed the student body last Friday evening, giving them a very interesting and instructive talk. After the general meeting he met the members of the Association and discussed with them the Annual Conference. While here a picture was taken of the Association and Mr. Seaman was taken with the group.

Professor Marsh, of Forest Grove, paid Chemawa a visit yesterday. While here he visited the various shops and industrial plants of the institution and made a most interesting talk to the students at the academic building. He takes great interest in this school as he was in close touch with it during the time it was located in Forest Grove. He taught in Forest Grove for more than forty years, a great part of the time in Pacific University, where he was professor of mathematics. He is now retired as he is one of the beneficiaries of the Carnegie Fund, to which his long and faithful service certainly entitled him.
