

WAGON SHOP NOTES

Watch the boys repair Mr. A. E. Zimmerman's buggy wheels.

Come on, boys, there is room for a few more on our P. M. detail. You will have nothing to do but work and learn how as you go.

Supt. Chalcraft's son, Pickering, and Mrs. Doherty's son, George, have joined C. E. Frye's band of willing workers in the cabinet shop.

Bring on anything you have, we will be glad to make you any kind of a piece of furniture you want. Prices as reasonable as consistent with good work.

The wagon shop is the busy corner of the grounds. Loafers please do us a favor by keeping out of our shop from now on. If you don't you will be requested to vacate.

Willing workers,
WAGON SHOP.

UNCLE SAM'S PICNIC

The Uncle Sams' Literary Society, composed of 46 husky boys, held their long-looked-for picnic of plenty of strawberries, cake, cookies, pies, doughnuts, cold meat, lemonade and buttered buns, on Tuesday evening, the 22nd, at Old Chemawa. All except two members were present and the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. Enright, Mrs. Teabo, Miss White, F. E. Smith, Joe Moss and Hiram Keogan. Mr. Turney came in time to see the happy camping ground deserted and all the goodies gone. The Uncle Sams are certainly thankful for the kindly interest taken in them by Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. Enright in promoting happy times for them. This ends the second years' work of the U. S. Literary Society. Long may it live.

Brevities

Did you attend the officers' party?

Quite a number of the boys go out in the country to pick strawberries.

Tom Phillips is going to surprise some of his friends about Sunday with a new suit.

Mr. Larsen has just received three new cornet solos. We are inclined to believe he means business.

The band is practicing in the afternoons for Chautauqua, where they will spend two weeks in July.

Pedro Chevio can always be seen these fine evenings returning from the country with a leather basket full of cherries.

There was quite a rush in Mr. Smith's office last Thursday morning, as all officers were there making ready for their big party which occurred last night.
