Do not shirk but rather hunt work if you want to be a success.

To the boys and girls of Chemawa during the winter: Save the crumbs of bread and feed the birds.

It never pays a young man or woman to play the sneak. Never go around the corner but always "face the music."

We like the tone of that person of Chemawa who said he liked to do what others said could not be done. That's the spirit!

Don't beg off from work because it is too hard. Hard, intricate work is what tests you, metal and then you know what it is to be up against the real thing.

Once again the school is at its full swing. The school room work is now in earnest, the shops are busy doing this and that, societies and associations have been organized.

Now boys and girls do your level best to do your part whatever it may be. First, master your lessons. Second, do your work faithfully. Third, prepare for your debates and all such things relating to your societies. Fourth, see that whatever you do will tend toward making you mentally, morally and physically good men and women. If you try to observe all these things you shall have a very successful year.

We have told the printers of the American something about big potatoes, and big carrots. This time it is a big cabbage. We had a cabbage in the office from the school garden of which the circumference was 44 inches and it weighed close on to 18 pounds. There are still bigger ones in the garden.

Excelsior.

The Excelsiors Literary Society held its meeting in room No 6. As no program had been made, the evening was devoted to business. There were five new members added to the society; we would like to have more members join us, and so improve the society. As everything had been discussed, and the time had come to close, a motion was made to adjourn.

Reliance

The Reliance Literary Society was re-organized November 4 in the school building. The following officers were elected: Harry Jones, President; Amos Smoker, Vice President; Orin French, Secretary; Frank Souvigner, Treasurer; George Nelson, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Walter Haight, reporter. Mr. Fiekle, the critic, spoke some encouraging words. Mr. Campbell told the members his experience in society during his college days. It was very interesting.

Nonpareil

The Nonpareils met in the music room of Mc Bride hall last Thursday evening. A very interesting program was rendered. Leanoire Rainville rendered her part exceptionally well. Miss Grear, the critic gave a very instructive talk. The following was the entire program: Opening address, Vernie Cliffe; piano solo, Leonora Rainville; recitation, Gladys Lucas; vocal duet, Lela Wilson and Vernie Cliffe; reading, Matilda John; jokes, Ella Flemming; piano solo, Esther Napoleon.
