LIVE ITEMS.

Mrs Fickle is among the indisposed this week.

Edna Nielsen has arrived and has been enrolled.

Mr. Chalcraft made a business run to Portland during the week.

Several real estate agents visited the school during the past week.

Miss Dolly Hefty brought Edna Nielsen to the school and spent a day visiting.

Miss Irene Campbell left yesterday for a two week's visit with her brother Donald at Spokane.

Mrs. Smith and the office force are busy preparing lists and reports of our graduates and ex-pupils of the school.

Mr. Joe Dillstrom is making a number of copies of cartoons on film for Mr. Chalcraft for use in the magic lantern.

Mr. Meyer has moved his family out from town and is now living in the cottage formerly occupied by Mr. Swartz.

A photograph of the boys basketball team would no doubt be interesting to them from a Chesterfield standpoint. Be careful boys.

A reader and a thinker are always coupled together. A good doer is and must be a thinker. Be a reader—a thinker—a doer.

The lawns have been nicely trimmed and put in excellent order and the boys are to be congratulated upon the result of their work.

The society meetings were well conducted on Thursday evening. Great interest and activity prevails in the societies this year.

Mr. Westley has planted several rows of persimmon seed and seed from the catalpa, or tree of heaven, which were brought by Mr. Chalcraft from Illinois when he was East this winter.

Our friends in the East and Middle West no doubt will be surprised when we tell them that the garden boys are busy this week digging the last couple of hundred bushels of our potato crop. The bins are full to overflowing.

A pupil who expects to imbibe all his knowledge in the couple of hours he or she spends each day in the school room will not be obtaining that habit of concentration necessary for success in after life.

If pupils expect to make a success of their education after they leave school they must learn to keep in touch with what is going on in the world around them. This can only be learned by reading the newspapers. Do you read them? If not, why not?

The repairs on Brewer Hall are about completed except the painting and some minor improvements. Skylights have been placed in, ventilating shafts put in similar to those in the small girls' home, so that the interior of the building is much lighter, more airy and livable.
