

PUPILS' ITEMS

Ben Bearchild has entered the bakery. John Stankus is working in the laundry.

Joe Bittles is now teamster on the garbage wagon.

The gardeners are again busy cultivating the potatoes.

The hay from behind the laundry was hauled to the barn this week.

About one half of the berry pickers were allowed to return to camp on Sunday.

Patsy Barrett was in charge of a force of boys picking blackberries of Monday morning.

Careless loading was the cause of the tipping over of a load of hay on Monday afternoon.

The farmers finished the season's mowing this week by cutting the hay down at the Lake.

The first mess of blackberries this season was enjoyed by the pupils on Sunday for supper.

George Wilson made a number of blackberry pies on Tuesday morning in the bakery.

The engine used for hauling things up from the well, etc., was taken from the tower this week.

Sixteen bushel of apples were delivered to the kitchen on Saturday morning by the gardeners.

Tom Powers and James Finley are the wood haulers at the engineering department this week.

The gardeners picked apples on Saturday morning. There will be an abundance of apples this year.

About forty gallons of blackberries are being delivered daily to the kitchen this week by the gardeners.

John Steele hoed and weeded around the rose bushes in front of the power house the first of the week.

Beatrice Guyette received a very pretty gold watch from her mother and surely Beatrice should be proud of it.

The stairway in the tower is now finished and the timbers, etc., used in the construction of them were taken out on Monday.

WOOD BUTCHERS.

The last shipment of hardware, tools and carriage trimmings arrived Saturday.

We have received a new Barnes mortising machine and have it installed.

We have four new Holland vices of the latest pattern and best make for our department. We are furnishing our department with the best machines that are made and making arrangements to put out the best work in the Indian service in our line. "Just as good" is not our motto. "The best" is our ambition. We will not be satisfied until we are equipped fully with the best machinery and capable of handling the finest of work. We believe the Superintendent feels us competent, and with his approbation and sanction we shall give our best endeavors, and we certainly appreciate the way he is favoring us with the necessities. So now it is up to us, boys, to show him the very best efforts possible in the way of finished work. Any boy who doesn't appreciate the advantages he will have in the next school year is not worthy of the opportunities extended to him.

We received about 5000 feet of lumber Saturday and are going to order more soon for our winter supply.—C. E. F.
