

PUPILS' ITEMS

When the first and second teams are at practice you can hear Joe Bittle's voice all over the grounds.

Wilbur Martin is working in the blacksmith shop and says he is going to make a good blacksmith out of himself.

Gus Corville does his work well in the harness shop. He intends to be a harnessmaker before leaving Chemawa.

Martin Colby has charge of the garden boys who deliver potatoes in the morning. Mr. Westly says Martin is a handy boy.

Miss Troutman and her floor girls were busy Monday afternoon distributing shawls to the girls. And we were all glad to get the new shawls, as the days are getting colder.

James Latattie, who entered school about a month and a-half ago, looks like he has been here a year by the way he works in the kitchen. Mrs. Brewer is proud of him and we all wish him success.

On Saturday afternoon the first and second teams played a practice game of foot ball and the score was 11 to 0 in favor of the first team. Henry Darnell was referee and Fred Bain was umpire; the time keepers were Reggie Downie and Nick Hatch.

WOOD BUTCHMRS.

V. Curley has his wagon about half done, and it will bear inspection.

A. Cuture has three of his wagon wheels completed and will commence on the balance of his wagon next week.

C. Pluff has his running gear almost completed. Boys, he is a little ahead with his task.

Matthias Simpson has Mr. Dillstrom's combination bookcase and writing desk pretty nearly completed.

We have one of the beds completed, so far as the wood work is concerned, of a new Democrat wagon with the addition of a bow top.

We are looking forward to the time that we can see some of Mr. Turney's work. We mean to make him go some to down us in wood work. We had one violin maker last year. There is plenty doing in our department.

In a few more weeks we shall show you the first extension table that was ever made in Chemawa, we think. Mr. C. E. Frye has ordered the slides.

Matthias Simpson is handling the cabinet department, as he likes it better than wagon work, and he is a good one for the business.

We are all glad to see the new lumber shed going up. When it is done we can clear out some of our stock, which will give us more needed room.

Mr. Frye received a long distance call from Mr. Chinnock, of Seattle, who made us a visit last Thursday to see about equipping our department with some greatly-needed machinery. Mr. Chinnock represents the J. A. Fay Egan machine Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio.—NICK.

SEWING-ROOM NOTES.

At present Miss Brown's sewing-room has four new girls: Pearl Davis, Alice Monroe, Almina St. Goddard and Sarah Monroe.

The sewing-room girls are all very busy making clothes for the new girls.

Lela Wilson, who has been working at Mr. Campbell's for sometime, is now detailed at the sewing-room for the present.

Viola Ferris is one of Miss Brown's brightest sewers in her department.

Most of the sewing room girls are juniors.
