

ACADEMIC ITEMS

Mr. Teabo went to Salem on Saturday.

Jerry Rees is the smallest boy on the dairy detail.

We had a minstrel show in chapel on Friday night.

We are all glad to see Seymour Goody back to Chemawa.

We all enjoyed the entertainment given by the Nesika club.

There are nine boys and eight girls in the junior class at present.

Mr. Normandin was here to visit his daughter, Caroline, last week.

James Benjamin gave us a very interesting talk on Monday morning.

In my short time of schooling in Chemawa I have learned a good deal.

James Moses returned to school last Friday afternoon from Washington.

William Sheakley says he will be a chief engineer when he goes home.

Peter La Rose and Leo Tonasket made some pies for the kitchen boys last week.

Paul Liphart was the trap puller at the shooting match on Saturday afternoon.

The senior class will have a fine new pennant pretty soon. Annie Buck is making it.

Lillian Patton is now taking lessons on the piano and likes it very much. We all wish her success.

The engineers and plumbers are laying a sewer pipe between Mr. Van Tassel and Mr. Gillette's house. There is class to it.

We hear a good bit of coughing among the children. Be careful and do not get your feet wet. Do not go outdoors without a wrap.

Lela Wilson devotes all her spare moments in studying, for she intends to lead the junior class in the quarterly examination.

The exhibit work sent in by the classroom teachers was very neatly done. Some of the work was of an exceptionally fine character.

Blanche Reed is very early in getting her presents. She received a very pretty dress and some ribbons from home and she was very glad.

Viola Farris is taking piano lessons from Miss Irene Campbell, and she is progressing rapidly, as she devotes most of her spare time to practice.

Deacon Lawton has been Mrs. Campbell's faithful little orderly for two months. Deacon is a small boy, but he is learning to be a first-class orderly.

Elsie Green is doing some fine embroidery work for Neva Souvigner. Neva is very much pleased with the fine work which Elsie is doing for her.

Sallie Boswell and Lenora Rainville received some pretty cards from their friends in San Francisco, Calif., saying they would be here to spend Christmas with them.

We would like to hear James Smith give an account of the Y. M. C. A. convention. James is an earnest, thoughtful young man and is doing good work in the senior class.

There is quite a good deal of rivalry between the boys and the girls of the fourth grade, and each class tries to excel in recitation. At present the boys are ahead, with fourteen making one hundred in a spelling test as compared with eight hundreds from the girls.
