

CUTTING TABLE CLIPPINGS.

The tailor shop is full of good news, which we will try to share with our fellow-workers at Chemawa. To begin with, we are very busy, and consequently very happy. Therefore, we are happily busy. The second proposition is to have others enjoy our pleasant state by seeing things as we see them.

On Friday we received an order from the office, signed by the superintendent, to cut and make a cape for one of the McBride Hall girls. This cape was intended as a gift from the school to Allah Madison who was married to our friend and late associate, Frank Rosenberger—a young man whom the tailor shop is pleased to know. This garment was cut by Gideon Hanbury and made by Gideon Hanbury and Joe Simpson. This being the first garment of this kind cut in our shop, we were pleased to receive the order, as we are always pleased to receive orders for making any garment that is unusual. It helps the student cutter, of which we have a few.

The cutting class is now studying the designing of vests, of which there are several styles, but at present we have under instruction the single-breasted vest without a collar. Only coat-makers are in this class, they being sufficiently advanced to take the instruction.

We report the absence of Luther Clements and Burney Wilson on account of slight injuries, and look for their early return to our shop.

Arthur VanPelt is making a pair of uniform trousers for himself. They were cut by Nick Hatch, who, by the way, is not to be made light of as a trousers cutter. He can design some. His production of a pair of peg-tops is very desirable and he promises well for the future.

Charlie Martin is becoming a good button-hole maker. He is a very faithful worker and a very pleasant boy to work with. Charlie can always see the bright side of everything and every task is a pleasure to this desirable boy. He is a veritable "Sunny Jim" with a perpetual smile, and is always willing to do as he is told. We owe much to Charlie for his good example.

We are pleased to report a visit from our esteemed friend and late associate, Frank Rosenberger, who spent a pleasant half hour with us. We are delighted to hear of Frank's success in his undertaking and trust that the future will prove the worthiness of which we feel he is capable.—TAILOR SHOP.

 HAVE YOU NOTICED—

John Murray's new "Gordon?"

Arthur VanPelt's new steel-toe arch, Florsheim Brand, collegian brogans?

Gideon Hanbury's three button, dip front sack, and 2-inch pegs? Something classy there, Gideon

Nick Hatch's new Collegian Brand serge?

John Horn's up-to-date ice cream trousers?

Archie Lane's new white vest? Some class to those pearl buttons, Pork.

Patsy Barnett's hatband? Hatch made that.

Thomas Williams' clod hoppers? They came handy as snow shovels during the week

Reggie Downie's overcoat? Something military about that, Fan.

Jake Hilburn is now working in the bakery.

John Murray visited Salem last Saturday and took in 'Bly's.'

Willie Mose and Levi Sortor are wood haulers this week for the fireman.