

LOCALS

Rumor has it that Louis Pellitier is building a house on his Montana property and that a Chemawa lassie is going to be in charge of it. Will the young lady please hold up her hand?

We draw attention to a clipping from the Oregonian relative to the "Industrial Evening" of Mr. Enright's tailor boys a week ago. We hope to give an article in our next issue bearing upon the showing of these boys.

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of 50 subscriptions to The American from girls of the small girls' home, thanks to Miss Troutman. This certainly is a health showing of interest and support of the school paper.

In a letter written Supt. Chalcraft recently Eugene Williams, who is now at Klamath Agency, Oregon, says that he is well and getting along nicely. He adds that the roads in his section are in a bad state and there is lots of snow.

The senior class pennant was made by Miss Annie Buck. It is very handsome, made of dark blue felt with the class motto, "Loyalty" and 1911 in white felt stitched upon the dark blue background. It ornaments the senior class room.

At the conclusion of the regular chapel exercises last Sunday evening Mr. Campbell gave a very good talk to those assembled. Later the girls were dismissed and he gave a lecture to the boys on matters pertaining to their physical and moral welfare, which, if heeded by the boys, must prove for their good.

A new Indian agent has been appointed at Quinault reservation, who has reached Granville, the Indian town. He is A. R. Roscovius, who has been employed in the same line of work near Tacoma. He takes the place of W. H. Blish, who has been filling the place temporarily since the death of former agent McCracken.

The academic teachers formed a permanent organization at their meeting on January 17, similar to that effected by the boys' instructors at their meeting the previous week. After an hour spent in considering school subjects the meeting was turned into a social function which was enjoyable to those in attendance.

A letter to Mr. Chalcraft from Manuel Swanson of Valdez, Alaska, conveys the information that he is employed in the electric light plant there at a salary of $120 per month, and that he is happy and contented. While at school at Chemawa Manuel was faithful in his studies and work, consequently is able to take his place among men. His many friends are pleased to hear from him.

CHALLENGE

Instructors of Industrial Departments, Chemawa, Oregon:

We, members of the Reliance Literary Society, champions of the school, do hereby challenge you publicly for a debate. Time and subject for discussion to be settled at your acceptance.

Very Respectfully,

HARRY W. JONES,
President.

On Monday Miss Faris gave a very interesting talk in chapel about furs. She told a story and told the prices of the different kinds of furs. She also told how people sometimes cheat in making up furs so that some ladies are wearing rat skins instead of seal skins.
