FINE RECEPTION.

The domestic science hall on Wednesday evening was the scene of a very fine reception given to the senior class by the juniors. Upon arriving at the hall, the guests' eyes met with decorations too numerous to mention—penants of both classes and flowers being the features. All were entertained with phonograph music until six-thirty, when dinner was announced and all took places at the table and started the "feature of all features." The menu consisted of meat, potatoes, gravy, corn, salad, bread, butter, coffee, sweet pickles, short cake, layer cake, lemon pie and lemonade. These were served in elegant style and when they were partaken of all again repaired to the sitting rooms, where many credited the statement that "the Chemawa girls can cook some." At a period near the "last call," all guests left the hall for quarters, wishing the members of the junior class success in all their undertakings and thanking them very much for the pleasure of a memorable evening.

John Raub, a former graduate of Chemawa, is here at present on a visit.

Fred Bender, brother of Mrs. Sanders, arrived at Chemawa during the week for a visit at the school. He has been a student at Carlisle.
