VACATION.

Vacation time is close upon us. From our school many will return to their homes to spend a number of weeks under the home roof and in company with relatives. They will go hither and yon, see all sorts of sights, and enjoy themselves generally. For the consideration of these pupils we wish to admonish them not to forget the things taught them during their school days here. It seems very easy to forget, especially if it be a matter of things which we ought not to forget.

For those of us who remain here at the school, as well as those who go abroad for their vacation, it will be well to keep in mind a little mathematics, rules of grammar, some geography and spelling. Turn the mind to historical matters once in a while, too. By such a course you will find your mind in a far better condition to take up your studies again in the fall when school is resumed. Try it. It will be worth while.

It is the little things of life that require attention. These little things shape the destinies of larger and graver events. The little things grow many times into large affairs and by keeping them well in hand during the growing period their management when they shall have attained great proportions is a problem of easy solution.

INVERSE RATIO.

The negro small boy on the plantation had eaten a great deal of watermelon and was suffering from indigestion in consequence. The doctor gravely diagnosed the case as "too much watermelon."

"No, sah!" said the old negro mammy. "No sich thing! Nevah was too much watermillion!" Then, looking the small negro over, she added, "No not too much watermillion—too little nigger!"—Judge.

BREVITIES.

On Tuesday evening the citizens of the State of Wilkinsonville held a meeting for the purpose of electing a Secretary of State. Robert Jones was elected to succeed Roy Van Pelt, who is now in the band and has quarters at Mitchell Hall.

The Patton Bros. of Salem will have a camera man on the grounds during commencement to take views of various groups and events. For those who have the post card craze this will be an opportunity to get a good collection. "Smile and look pleasant."
