

Wild Man Lives Alone In Cave

From Hand-to-Hand Encounter With Man Who Battled Him in His Cave in Effort to Win Reward.

Mr. Sterling, Bl.—A wild man, living in a cave near here, is thwarting all efforts of police and armed citizens to capture him and is keeping the countryside in terror with his raids on outlying farms. A price has been set on his head, but desperate attempts to capture him in his lair have proved fruitless.

The wild man recently made a series of bold robberies near Mt. Pleasant, carrying off cattle and sheep to a deserted mine where he stays hidden in the daytime. Ambrose Smith, a dead shot and a tireless hunter, was seriously wounded in a terrific hand-to-hand encounter with the mysterious man-monster.

Is Huge Creature With Bony Hands. "The wild man has long, wiry hair that bristles about his savage-looking face," Smith said in his home, where he is recovering from the adventure. "In the uncertain light of the cavern, I made him out to be a great towering creature. His hands are thin and the flesh is stretched over the bones like leather."

People feared black damp in the long empty galleries of the mine so much that even a reward of $500 for the wild man, dead or alive, failed to result in full apprehension. At last Smith, accompanied by J. M. Blair and others from Mt. Pleasant, all armed with a gun, went to the cave. It was late in the afternoon. Smith and the others stand back 200 yards from the mouth of the cave and entered alone, armed only with his large hunting knife. His dog followed him.

Fought for Hour in Damp Cave.

Night fell and the searchers waited in vain for Smith's return. Then there was a great noise and the dog ran out whimpering. The men went into the cavern in search of Smith. They groped along through the twisting passageways in the darkness, but were unable to find any trace of him. At midnight Smith crawled from the cave on his hands and knees and fell faint and exhausted at the feet of his friends.

"I did not get more than 50 feet into the cave boys," he said, as they carried him to the doctor. "When I saw the wild man glaring at me a few

His Retirement A Necessity

The Tribune is a friend of Senator LaFollett, but that friendship does not blind us to the fact that he has passed his day of legislative usefulness and that he should give place to other and younger, more active men to represent Marion county's big interest in state affairs.

No matter how worthy Mr. LaFollett's motives may be it is a well-known fact that he exercises no influence in the senate. He is not thoroughly informed on any of the public questions that come before that body for discussion, the consequence being that when he speaks on any subject he is a joke. Nobody takes him seriously, because his vote, his advocacy or his opposition is not based upon knowledge of the subject or upon its merits. Every body knows this to be true and it would be a real service to himself and a decided service to the county, to relieve him from the ridicule of the rest of the state.

It is also a fact that Mr. LaFollett's age and his obesity cause him to be half the time so drowsy and sleepy that he has no conception of what is going on around him and is not competent to analyze the legislation that is in progress, consequently he is of no value whatever in protecting the interests of the state and of his country.

These things are not said with any feeling of uncharitable press, but as plain truths patent to all his acquaintances and he should not ask his friends to stultify their sense of the proprieties by voting for him. He should retire gracefully, but so long as he has not had foresight enough to do so, the voters of the county will be compelled to leave him at home against his will.

Marion county is the second in importance in Oregon and it ought to be represented by men second to none in the state in intelligence, in ability and in a grasp of public affairs.

Senator Louis Lachmund will be unable to get out and make a campaign for reelection on account of sickness. Mr. Lachmund is a good safe man to return to the senate as his record there has been a good one. Read carefully the articles on editorial page relative to what he has accomplished. A vote for Lachmund is well placed toward a man who will guard the interests of the state and taxpayer.

Entertained

Mrs. P. E. Thomasson entertained the Young People Class for the second time during the last four weeks. This time not as a regular class meeting but as a farewell party for Mr. Wm. Davis.

The young people met at the Christian church and from there about ten cars carried them to the party. Mr. Davis was surprised and greeted every one with the usual welcoming smile. Games were played until a late hour.

When every one was tired and ready to sit down awhile, they gathered in one room and LaVern Miller presented Mr. Davis with a pretty gold knife and cuff links in the name of the class.

Then in came Mrs. Delcell with a tray full of cake and large helpings of ice cream. Don't think that she only brought one tray, because she made many, many trips. Mr. Thomas and wife were kept busy, too.

Thirty young people were present and all enjoyed every minute of the evening. This is the second glorious evening that Mrs. Thomasson has shown the young people and they surely appreciate her kindness and are ready to go again. Mr. Davis has been a member of the class for a long time.

Three or four young people that had not been with us before were present, and they are welcomed by all the class to come again, and again. Who says we are not growing? The party was held Monday evening. —A. F.

It Costs You More to rot buildings than it does to let paint save them

CHECK the costs. Compare the prices of lumber and paint. They will show you how extravagant it is to allow buildings to depreciate for lack of paint.

And buildings do depreciate rapidly unless they are painted when they need to be. Paint saves the lumber. It protects your investment.

To enjoy the biggest saving in painting use the best paint. It spreads more easily—saves labor cost. It covers more surface per gallon than "cheap" paint.

It serves five or more years longer than "cheap" paint.

The best paint is most economical because it is scientific in formula and preparation. We have been making best paints for 75 years.
