Cultivation of row crops in Oregon should begin while the weeds are small says the experiment station. The first cultivations are usually made with a harrow or weeder and later cultivations with a tined cultivator. The cultivator should be run about three inches deep or just deep enough to stir the soil sufficiently to kill weeds and cover up weeds in the row. In some instances on rather hard soils deep early cultivation should be made.

Land for kale should be well manured and after plowing must be kept clean of weeds until planting time, which is usually after a favorable rain in June. Kale plants should be set deep to make them grow close to the ground and avoid excessively tall stalks in the field, the experiment station finds. The tall stalks are more susceptible to winter injury.

For late planting for hog or poultry feed the experiment station finds Japanese or silver hull buckwheat offers most promise. It is sowed like grain on a well prepared seed bed any time from the middle of May to the end of June. Forty-five pounds of seed are used per acre. It usually keeps growing as long as the moisture lasts, or until frosts stop it. It is especially valuable for poultry feed and for sale to millers.

Diseased potatoes plants should be removed from the seed fields as soon as they appear, the Oregon station advises. Sick plants are a source of infection from which disease may spread to other plants in the field. Potato seed buyers are becoming more particular in their choice of seed and demand seed of better quality.

NEAR EAST RELIEF ANNUAL REPORT

Sixty Thousand Children Trained; Thousands Encouraged to "Carry On."

How America rescued 250,000 people from certain death, saved 14,000 orphans from blindness, restored 14, 159 orphans to home life and self support, gave medical aid to 22,000 people although twelve physicians died while fighting typhus, clothed 505, 300 refugees, accomplishing these results in spite of obstacles that would have daunted anyone except an Anglo-Saxon, is told in the annual report of Near East Relief which has recently been filed with Congress.

Moving 20,000 children a distance of hundreds of miles until practically all the Armenian children are out of Turkey; feeding, clothing, housing, and training 60,000 children, educating boys and girls at the age of 14 to make their own way as mechanics for railway shops, instructors in nursing, school teachers, skilled artisans and farmers, giving faith, hope, and courage and the will to fight back to self support to thousands of people—all these are but a few of America's achievements in the Near East last year.

A fund of nearly $9,000,000 was raised and expended at an overhead cost of $478,000.

These and other facts are found in the annual report, copies of which may be secured on application to the Near East Relief, J. J. Handaker, State Director, 413 Stock Exchange, Portland.

"The achievements, great as they are, give us no sense of pride," states Handaker, "only a sense of gratitude that we have been able to do as much as we have and of regret that we could not do more. Last year at one time our Near East Relief workers were surrounded by dying men, women and children at five relief stations at once. A heart broken relief worker took down the orphanage sign from his overcrowded orphanage because there was no further room and children continued to come pleading for admission.

"Admission to orphanages was refused to 5000 children at one time. Due to lack of funds it was found necessary to discontinue child feeding in Constantinople although there were six inches of snow on the ground at the time."

At the present date there are at least 500,000 people homeless in Greece, people who two years ago were self supporting and self respecting residents of Turkey. A third of a million people are slowly starving to death although the people aided by the Greek government to the extent of its ability and by relief agencies are attempting to fight their way back through unpeppable discouragements to self support.

The report closes with urgent recommendations from 15 prominent Americans recently in the Near East that the work be continued until the children now in the orphanages are brought to self support and that the needs of the hundreds of thousands of other helpless children in the Near East be urged upon America. Among those signing these recommendations are John H. Finley, editor of the New York Times, Ex-Governor Allen of Kansas, Dr. Cavert, Secretary Federal Council of Churches, Bishop Cannon, M. E. Church South, Mrs. Alice Hagan Rice.

ROAD NOTES

This nation builds roads at the rate of a billion dollars a year. The total highways mileage in the United States is 2,941,294, of which only some 430,000 miles have been improved.

Money for road building, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, is raised as follows: Bonds, 38.1 per cent; general property taxes, 36.2 per cent; motor vehicle fees, including gasoline taxes, 10.6 per cent; Federal aid, 6.8 per cent all other sources, 8.2 per cent.

Bonds issued by counties, townships, and districts, and many issued by States, are paid by general property taxes, which these pay a very large proportion of the total. It is estimated that real estate pays from 55 per cent to 70 per cent of the total annual highway revenue.

Such figures are a powerful argument for the creation of a National Highway Commission and the building and maintenance of national highways by the Nation. If general taxes at the present contribute more than two-thirds to road building, obviously if the entire job of trunk-line development were taken over by the Nation, two-thirds of the proposed expense would be discounted!

What the Nation built, the State county, township, and district would not have to build.

Splendid a billion a year for roads the Nation does not get a billion dollars' worth of roads. If the Government spent that billion, according to a unified, comprehensive, centrally controlled plan, the Nation would get value received, and at no more or but slightly increased cost than accompanying our present wasteful, because too decentralized, plans.

Shortest of Sentences

What is believed to be the record for short sentences pronounced in Fresno county, California, was imposed on George Leicht, charged with vagrancy. The judge ordered Leicht held in custody for fifteen minutes, after which he was to leave Fresno. The fifteen-minute sentence was pronounced to separate Leicht and his pal, who was arrested on the same charge.

Arms and the Woman.

We are opposed to the arms of women. Arms fat and arms thin. Arms tattooed with vaccination marks. Goosy-headed arms. Flabby arms. Arms with whiskers. Stringy, vetny arms. Arms with burns and bruises and birthmarks. Arms like rocks at low tide. Arms like boilers. Or Braun-schweig-leber-wursts. Arms horribly suggestive of strapons. Old arms. Terrible, terrible old arms. Arms with skin you don't want to touch. Or even look at. When and whence this rebellion, this frenzy for freedom—this short-skirted freedom of the knees, this relentless unshattering of arms? —Zoe Beckley in McNaught's Monthly.
