There is movement on foot to have enacted a child labor law which would prohibit the manufacturer or any one else hiring any child or young person that is under age. This legislation is no doubt fostered by the trade unions in order to maintain a monopoly on the labor situation. It will not only do that but it will force the young person, boy or girl into a life of business in place of a life of industry and self respect. Our good friend, Col. Hofer, in the Manufacturers' Review, writes, "It would be a good idea to have a law that would prevent a boy from serving an apprenticeship in any trade and it would be but a matter of a few years until the matter would be a security of skilled labor that couldn't be filled. Nearly all states have laws that regulate the ages when a child shall or shall not work in a factory or other place of public employment. We quote again from the manufacturer: "No greater misfortune could happen to the growing generation, call them children or young people than to be deprived of the opportunity for an actual employment and to turn money to help support their families."

RETURNING TOURISTS TELL SAME STORY

"One of the greatest encouragements in the eight years I have served as Director of the Near East is the report brought back by returning tourists this year," states J. J. Handsaker, Regional Director for Near East Relief for Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and Alaska.

"It is a very significant thing that these tourists all come back with the same story. Some saw one part of the work and some another. But all unite in saying that the Americans engaged in the work are of unusually high type; that the work is economically and efficiently done, and if America only knew the need and how far the need is being met with the money available, there would be no lack of funds.

"Among those recently visiting the Near East and whose reports have been uniformly enthusiastic, are Mrs.
 C. S. Jackson and her secretary, Miss Julia Hobday, of the Oregon Journal; Miss Cornelia Marvin, State Librarian; Mrs. Luisa Kellenka, of the Eugene Bible University; Prof. W. J.
 Sly, Linfield College; Miss Mella Smith of the Portland Public Schools, and Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Coe of Portland, philanthropists, Dr. J. R. Wetherbed, former President Portland Chamber of Commerce.

"Acting on the advice of the National Information Bureau, the Community Chests of Portland, Tacoma and Seattle include the Near East Relief for generous appropriations. The purpose of this bureau is to investigate the workings of relief agencies, both at home and abroad, and no Community Chest will give a penny to an organization not approved by this bureau. Investigators have found that the money gets there —if we give it."

"The Near East Relief offices are at 613 Third Exchange, Portland and 239 Burke Bldg., Seattle.

WASHINGTON BOY HOME FROM NEAR EAST

ALFRED MERRITT
 Alfred Merritt, who has just returned to his home in Tacoma after three years service for the Near East Relief in Russian Armenia.

"Unless you have been over there and have seen thousands upon thousands of children gradually develop from practical savagery, to which they had been reduced, into happy useful self-supporting members of humanity you can never know what that country owes to America. The work is not finished yet but after this year should begin to diminish. With thousands of children still hungry in refugee camps this is no time to think of reductions or withdrawals."

"Ted Gannaway, a boy from Medford and Seattle, is busy distributing clothing in Greece. He pays the refugee women, many of them expert needlewomen, a few cents a day for making over the clothing. Then if a man is able to pay any price whatever he is expected to pay all that he can afford, although often only a few cents, for the clothing. We are determined not to pauperize these people, who, until a few years ago, were prosperous and self-respecting. So carefully does Ted Gannaway handle this clothing that he actually turns back a profit each month, a profit which is used for the purchase of food for the children of whom there are thousands and thousands hungry in Greece today.

"The same sort of miracles are wrought with old clothing across the Black Sea in the Russian Caucasus where about half of the expense of the work is met through contributions of old clothing from America. The Russian government pays a stated sum for these tons of clothing, and they are furnished to workers who make them over and put them in shape for sale to the bazaars or shops. Again the people are not pauperized for those who can pay, pay a small amount, and only the cases of the most desperate need receive free gifts."

"At present, Mr. Merritt says, the state of the Armenians is most unhappy. They are being forced out of Greece, and, as they are not allowed in Turkey or Russia, they have nowhere to go, but are gathered in refugee stations along the shores of the Mediterranean sea, waiting for the League of Nations to decide what is to be done with them. "Why the allies allowed the Turks to get off so easy is more than any of us can understand," he said, discussing the situation in the Levant. "That was certainly a most terrible mistake, and we have not begun yet to know how terrible it was."

Do you want a monthly farm income? Money is ready for all of the cream you can produce.

Do not stint the dairy cow. Give her all she will eat of the right kind of feeds, properly balanced. If you expect her to produce liberally.

Butter prices have taken a drop.
 Now is the time the cow-feeding work shows up. Only efficient cows can produce at a profit when we reach the flush season of production which always forces a decline in price.

 velopes.

Horse Markets Coming Back

Horse markets are coming back. As both farm and city are demanding more and better horses, better prices may ultimately result, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation based on a study of the trend in the buying power of farm horses during the past 37 years.

Low prices probably will continue to discourage horse and mule production and cause a falling off in the equine population until average prices return, the Foundation believes. But already horse breeding operations have begun to expand in the districts possessing the kind of foundation stock capable of producing the sort of horses the market wants. Attractive prices are now being paid for all good, big sound shapely drafters coming to market and good horses of the wagon type weighing 1,400 to 1,600 pounds. Prices have advanced from the extreme depression of two years ago.

How soon the turning point will be reached on the rank and file of horses is uncertain. Previous cycles of horse and mule prices as shown by the accompanying chart have varied greatly in length. The first lasted eleven years from depression to depression, the second eighteen years and the present cycle is already twenty-seven years. It seems logical to believe that an upward turn in prices which will last for a decade or longer will start before long and that good horses and mules produced from matings in the next few years will get the benefit of that advance by the time they reach marketable age.
 Good horses are the exception on farms today. It is unthinkable that good farmers will be content with plugs for long.

IT PAYS TO MARKET BEEF OF QUALITY

It is condition and quality rather than weight that decide whether a steer is to be placed in the beef cattle classification. Within the class it is condition and quality that largely determine the amount of profit that goes to the shipper. Choice to prime steers bring from 75 cents to $5.75 per hundred-weight over the common light stock, according to a study made of lightweight steers coming to the Chicago market by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

The bulk of the shipments are classified under the grades of prime steers, 1,200 to 1,600 pounds; choice steers, 1,150 to 1,400 pounds; good steers, 1,150 to 1,600 pounds; medium steers, 1,100 to 1,400 pounds, and common rough steers, 900 to 1,200 pounds. These are the classifications of the United States Bureau of Markets.

Prime beef steers are the ideal type, combining exceptional breeding and thorough finishing. Short neck and short legs, smooth flesh and well-filled, bulging briskets are prerequisites. Prime beef steers are rare, even steers good enough to grade as choice are few. They show most of the characteristics of the prime grade, good breeding and long feeding, smooth flesh and thick fat. On the block the quality steer will show a good proportion of red meat covered with a modest amount of smooth white fat. The lean, white firm of texture, will be mellow to the touch. The carcass should carry down full to the hock, being highly marbled with bright lean of a fine grain.

Farm Pointers

O. A. C. Exp. Station.
 The recent high water which covered many potato fields, according to the experiment station, showed that the early planted tubers which had matured were much better able to stand submerging. Later potatoes, not so fully matured, rotted badly, in some cases 10 to 20 times as much as the early planted well matured stock.

Experiments at the station at Corvallis have shown that hay put into storage in the summer months increased several pounds per bale during the winter and usually reaches its maximum in February or March. It takes up moisture from the moist air and the bales are considerably heavier at mid-winter than they are at mid-summer. The hay generally goes back to nearly its original weight the following summer.

February is the months to sow red and alsike clover. This planting is usually made on fall grain and last two weeks of the month. Light freezing and thawing, or rains, usually serve to cover the seed. The clover seed business demands pure seed, consequently seed to be planted should be free from buckhorn. The experiment station seed laboratory makes seed tests free of charge, so anyone can know whether his seed is good.

BENT GRASSES GOOD
 Seed of fine bent grass, resistant to sour wet conditions, and highly prized for lawns, golf courses, football fields and other places where turf is needed, are now available. It is being produced in commercial quantities at Coquille, Or., and imports for the current year are moderately heavy. The remarkable turfs formed by these grasses are probably best for moderately heavy soils. They grow native in many parts of the coast and Willamette valley sections. In some instances chopped up seeds are scattered over the ground and worked in, the lawns being formed by vegetative development.

"Chicks must be properly fed from the start if they are to develop into vigorous stock," says H. E. Cooby, extension specialist in poultry husbandry at O.A.C.

"Just before the chick is hatched the yolk of the egg is absorbed into the body of the chick and supplies food for the first 48 hours. The first requirement of the chick after hatching is heat, so give it food that supplies heat and energy as well as the elements needed for bone and muscle. Newly hatched chicks may be fed with good results during the first week three times daily on a chick food containing three pounds each of cracked corn, cracked wheat, pin-head oatmeal or steel cut oats, and one pound of fine grit. A mash of equal parts of bran shorts and corn meal mixed with eggs, or rolled oats with eggs, is recommended twice daily. Sour milk or buttermilk is fed in addition. Grit and charcoal are provided in hoppers, and the chicks are given green feed once a day.

No grain or mixture of grains supplies all the various elements of food necessary for normal chick development. Chick grains are supplemented with muscle forming foods derived from an animal source, such as meat scraps, meat meal, fish meal and milk. "The amount of weight taken on by young chicks when properly fed is remarkable," says Mr. Cooby. "At 12 weeks of age a normal chick will have increased its weight about 25 times. Thus if proper feeding methods are used, there must be a bountiful profit in raising young chicks."

GRAPE CUTTINGS

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Dec. 23.—Grape cuttings may be taken at any time after the leaves fall until the buds break in the spring says C. E. Shuster, professor of horticulture at O.A.C. Healthy, vigorous wood, one year old, should be chosen. Cuttings are usually three buds long, though they can be shorter if wood is scarce. The lower cut is made just below the bud, where the roots will develop most freely. The upper cut is made about an inch above the bud, as this will allow a little drying out without injury to the bud. After cutting, the pieces are tied in bunches and stored in sand until spring. Early in the spring, as soon as the ground can be worked, the cuttings are put in rows convenient for cultivation. These plants should be ready for transplanting at the end of the first year.

Waters Within the Earth
 The amount of water within the crust of the earth is enormous, amounting to 565,000,000,000 cubic yards. This vast accumulation, if placed upon the earth, would cover its entire surface to a uniform depth of from 3,000 to 35,000 feet.
