

THE TURNER TRIBUNE

F. H. Rowley, Editor

Issued Every Thursday at Turner, Marion County, Oregon

SUBSCRIPTION $1.25 PER YEAR. Entered at the Postoffice at Turner, Oregon, as second-class matter, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The fight for the United States to enter the League of Nations is still raging. Senator Borah, the old war horse from Idaho, is putting up a hard fight against it and he is fighting a battle for the right. The World Court is the child of the League of Nations and is only a slick way of getting the United States into the League. If the United States enters the World Court it will simply be a sell out to European interests. The farther we can stay away from European entanglements the better we are off. It is better for us to form our alliances on this side of the pond for protection against invasion from the other side than to get into a position where we will be drawn into any petty squabble that may arise in Europe. Their principles differ from ours. If we align ourselves in any world court or league of nations it will leave the laws we have enacted for our own protection in jeopardy, for in case our immigration laws. We can pass laws regulating foreign immigration and with the majority vote laying in European hands, the world court or league of nations, whatever it may be called, could out vote us and compel us to alter those laws. It is apparent, then, that it is a trick by certain interests, to get us where they can exert an influence over us unfavorable to themselves. It be to the best interests of this nation to stay clear from any of its entangling influences.

Two places on the Oregon coast have been designated as bird reserves by President Coolidge. One of these is Hay Stack Rock, off Cannon Beach, and the other is near Marshfield. There has been a habit of those frequenting the beach resorts, of killing the seagulls and other birds for the fun of killing. The seagull is a scavenger and is necessary to the public health along the water fronts. Their meat is tough and unfit for food. They are among the most graceful birds on the wing. Why destroy them for the fun of killing something? There is a law fixing a heavy penalty for the killing of these birds. With these reservations established this law should be enforced.

Some time ago the County Court, in answer to a petition from the residents of Turner and community, established the Cloverdale route as the market road. It seems that there is danger of losing the road from the fact that the Southern Pacific Depot stands in the center of the street that has been selected as the route for the road to enter Turner. It would be a hard blow to the town and community if the route should be abandoned since so much effort has been expended in locating the route through Turner. It seems from reports that the S. P. Company at one time promised to move the depot out of the street. In view of the fact that it is possible that if a committee from the road districts effected with a committee from the City of Turner would invite the railroad officials concerned to meet them on the ground, an agreement might be reached whereby the obstacle could be removed. Turner surely needs the market road and it would be a benefit to the railroad and community as well. Why not try it?

According to press reports, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews, who has charge of the enforcement of the 18th amendment, made the statement that a man has the right to manufacture cider and wine for his own use, and the court has the right to decide whether the alcoholic content is sufficient to make it intoxicating or not. That, if it be so, is a very liberal step for a man who was going to put into effect an iron clad rule of prohibition enforcement. If that attitude is carried out it will only be a few more steps until light wines and beer will be on the market. If the present plan is carried out this may soon happen. Wrong is wrong and right is right. If a man has to practice deceit to gain the confidence of the man in order to gain the evidence to make the arrest, he is committing a wrong just as much as the man he is arresting. It is necessary in most cases for the agent to buy the drinks in order to secure the evidence. A man is forced to violate the law in order to enforce it. We are in favor of absolute prohibition but are opposed to unfair methods in enforcement.

If you want to bring out the different ideas and temperaments in a small town, get up a special election. From the attitude of Senator Borah, if the U. S. enters the World Court it will not be unanimous.

LOVE TRIANGLE TREATED ROUGH BY ARAB FOLKS

Unfaithful Ones Are Stoned to Death, Says Writer

London.—Mr. and Mrs. Sheik—the husband and wife of the great sandy spaces—must love each other until the sands of the desert grow cold or they are stoned to death.

Mrs. Rosita Forbes, writer and explorer, back from the East, told how the Arabs handle the marriage and divorce problem which is causing so much concern among the western nations.

"The people themselves," she said, "have a peculiar punishment for misconduct which usually acts as a deterrent for husbands and wives who would otherwise err.

"Should a man or woman be unfaithful, the two guilty persons are taken to a public square and buried up to their armpits in sand. Then their companions stone them to death, showering curses on them for being unclean. Obviously, promiscuous love leads with little encouragement."

The divorce law of Arabia, the writer explained, makes it necessary for the wife to watch her steps through the sand.

When a man can divorce his wife by simply clapping his hands and repeating three times, "I divorce you," the wife is sure to be careful," Mrs. Forbes declared.

To satisfy the curiosity of the natives, who have a deep dislike for strangers, and to ally their hostility, Mrs. Forbes passed as a woman bound for the harem of a wealthy sheik, in one village, however, a mob surrounded the woman explorer and pulled her from her horse. A tall, good-looking Arab came along, beat off the mob and took Mrs. Forbes to his harem, where he treated her with chivalry.

Concerning the Freckle

Researches have shown a surprising coincidence between the location of the freckles and of the points representing the thermic sense in the skin. The freckle may be a biologic deflection process to protect the nerve terminal, at a specially vulnerable point, by an extra pigmentation.

Place Mirrors Carefully

If mirrors are well placed they help immeasurably in conveying the Impression that a room is larger than it really is. In a small room a mirror is indispensable—it may be over the fireplace or at the end of the room; in the latter case draperies on either side add to the effect.

How Butter Fat in Milk is Broken Up

Do you know what the word homogenization means? Ninety-eight out of 100 housewives to whom the question recently was put admitted they couldn't answer. Can you?

But here it is explained by Miss Meta H. Given, food authority doing research work at the University of Chicago.

"Homogenization," says Miss Given, "is the name of the process which breaks up butter fat in evaporated milk into tiny particles so they blend evenly with the solids. Homogenization causes the butter fat globules to adhere to the albumin and the casein of the milk. In the process, milk is forced through countless numbers of openings at a pressure of around 3,500 pounds.

"In addition to preventing a cream and skim milk line, this breaking up of fat contributes to smoothness and perfect blending of foods such as cream sauces, soups, ice cream and baked products.

"It also has a digestive advantage for those who have difficulty in assimilating milk. Many pediatricians recommend evaporated milk as a baby food, although, like other substitutes for the natural supply, it should not be considered as a food complete in itself. Addition of orange or tomato juice, barley water or lime water are important in providing adequate diet for the infant.

"All authorities recognize that normal mother's milk is the best food for infants, but this natural milk is frequently inadequate. In quantity and quality. Scientists say cow's milk is the best substitute. But cow's milk must be modified and supplemented with other foods. The fat in mother's milk is in homogeneous suspension and being flocculent forms small curds in the stomach, but the fat in cow's milk is in relatively large globules, forms large tough curds in the stomach and is much harder to digest. In evaporated milk the fat is broken up by homogenization and the curds softened until in size and digestibility they resemble natural infant food."

Housework Worth $900 a Year, but—

Nine hundred dollars a year is the value of the average housewife's services in the home, and statistics show there are 20,700,000 women engaged in housework, according to Mrs. Leonora Z. Medler, prominent Chicago woman lawyer and economist.

"The wife," said Mrs. Medler, who was formerly public welfare officer of Chicago, "is an executive, purchasing agent, budget expert, and producer rolled into one. The successful home maker studies food values. She arranges her budget so that the food she buys will have all the necessary body building qualities.

"The woman who would keep down her food bill will do better to spend her money on milk and green vegetables than on butter, though butter is one of the best sources of the essential food element, vitamin A. There are butter substitutes, but nothing can take the place of milk and vegetables.

"Milk food experts say, is the most nearly perfect food. Science solved the problem by inventing evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk sterilized in cans and with sixty per cent of the water removed. Because evaporated milk is of double the richness of ordinary market milk, many housewives dilute it half and half with water for cooking purposes. Keeping longer than ordinary milk, there is no waste from souring. Then, too, it is cheaper.

"Savings also can be made on meat. Cheaper portions of beef skillfully cooked are highly nutritious and often better tasting than portions which cost more. The shoulder, breast and stew meat of lamb are excellent. Pork shoulders, feet, tails, heart, spareribs and loafs are in the same category."

Too Risky

The stern parent was admonishing his offspring not to be effeminate. "Don't be a mollycoddle," he said. "Talk like a man." "Yes, and then you'd give me a lickin' for cusin'." whimpered the kid.—Philadelphia Record.
