

THE TURNER TRIBUNE

J. P. Rowley, Editor

Issued Every Thursday at Turner, Marion County, Oregon

SUBSCRIPTION $1.25 PER YEAR. Entered at the Postoffice at Turner, Oregon, as second-class matter, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The Countess of Cathcart won her suit against the Department of Labor on the question of whether she was to be allowed to remain in the United States or whether she was to be deported. The authorities claimed that she was a menace to the morals of the country on account of immoralities committed in a foreign country. About the only thing found against her was the fact that she was divorced from a marriage following an elopement to a foreign country. She was released from Ellis Island after giving bond. When the time had expired she was returned to the island where she started Habeas corpus proceedings and won out. The judge decided that there had been no crime committed. If they want to deport some one they can find many people that are already in this country that are more deserving of deportation than the Countess of Cathcart. Those in authority who are trying so hard to uphold the public morals of the country might do well to study the words of the Master: "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone." If they want to purify the public morals of the country let them clean out the "undesirables" that are in this country, then stop them from coming in.

TURNER BEAUTIFUL

By the time this comes out in print the entire strip along the mill race between B and D streets will be planted to roses. The part between C and D was planted last year and made vast improvement in the looks of the town. Owing to the efforts of some of the public spirited citizens this was made possible. Every one should be interested in beautifying the town. A clean, neat appearing town is the best advertising a community can have. Strangers passing through a place and seeing the streets clean and lined with flowers, particularly the hardy long blooming roses, will talk about it wherever they go and unconsciously advertise the town. It would be a good move for the booster club to take up this kind of civic activity. We would have a town that would look better to us who have to live here and it would be more attractive to tourists. We still maintain as we did last year that some move should be made to establish an auto park. With the completion of the Marion-Jefferson road much of the tourist traffic will be diverted over this route. An auto park here even with a small fee charged would draw campers who would rather stop in a small place than the larger places.

The use of a little paint also makes a town attractive, especially in the business section. Nothing attracts the eye of the stranger quite as much as a row of nice clean, well painted buildings. We who live here are used to seeing them as they are, but the stranger who passes through notices the conditions and naturally compares the conditions found in one place with those in the next place he visits. Let us make our town one that the stranger will be glad to visit.

THE GUARDIAN OF NAVIGATION

Radio is making ocean travel safer. By the use of recently perfected thoriated tungsten tubes, the ice patrol is now able to flash warnings without interference with commerce or broadcasting. Speaking of this invention, which combines thorium and tungsten, both metals, for new uses to mankind, A. L. Hawkins, engineer in charge of the research laboratories of the General Electric Co., said:

"Ice patrol warnings from this equipment, while reaching much farther than ever before, will no longer be a source of interference with commercial traffic and broadcast entertainment. Under favorable conditions it is expected that direct communication will be had with headquarters in Washington.

"Success for the ice patrol consists not only in finding bergs, but also in conveying quickly to ships at sea exact information of the whereabouts of these menacing floaters. Most ships traversing the Atlantic are now equipped with radio apparatus; hence the fitting of these patrol boats with the best radio transmitters which could be produced."

Discovery of new uses of radio are almost a daily occurrence, and its value to mankind is incalculable.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago the seventh day of this month Alexander Graham Bell received his initial patent papers on the electric telephone. The patent records show that March 7th closed the first half century. Alexander Graham Bell had the utmost faith in his invention, for records show that he applied for his patent before he had completely demonstrated the speaking value of his invention. Fifty years ago the telephone was a crude instrument and when his patent was issued could only be used between rooms or at the most for short distances. Now a telephone conversation can be carried on a single wire across the continent. March 10 was the date that it was practically demonstrated that communication could be carried on between two persons over a metallic circuit. Little did Alexander Graham Bell realize that he was putting a utility before the people that in 50 years would prove indispensable to business progress. What more fitting monument than to have the immense system that has girdled the nation, east and west, north and south, with wires bear his name.

Happiness in Duty

There is only one stimulant that never fails and yet never intoxicates—Duty. Duty is a blue sky over every man—up to his heart, maybe—into which the skylark, Happiness, always goes singing.—Frentice.

Lying Tongue Condemned

All high and grand emotions scorn the tongue that lies, as helpless in the mouth as would be artillery to examine the wind and grandeur of mountain thunders in tropical storms.—Becher.

HOW THE CATTLE MARKET ACTED IN 1925

THE large demand for both feeder and fat cattle, finds the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in its cattle marketing investigations, has inspired a much greater confidence in the future of the industry. The first recovery trend of prices from February to August. The average prices paid to farmers, states the Foundation. In the first ten months of the year ran 83 cents higher than the prices of last year and the highest since 1920. Chicago prices were also the highest for that period for the last five years.

Liquidation of western cattle herds was much less noticeable in 1925 than in any year since 1919, showing that the cattle industry is gradually getting back to a state of normalcy. The total number of cattle slaughtered under federal inspection in 1925, was 5 per cent greater than in 1924.

Baby beef, made from young cattle that have been pushed to a desirable market weight of around 1,000 pounds at an early age, brought the highest prices. Public demand for smaller cuts of choice beef have made the half-ton baby beef popular on the market.
