The GREEN CLOAK

STORY FROM THE START

Dr. Ronald McAllster, psycholor Ronald Modifier, psychologist, undertakes to solve the mystery of the murder of a recluse, Henry Morgan. The dead man's papers reveal that he had been in New Zealand, where Mc-Allster had lived in his youth. Will Harvey testifies to seeing a woman in a green clock at the Will Harvey testifies to seeins a woman in a green cloak at the Morgan home the night of the murder. Doctor McAlister is asked to see a young woman patient in a hospital. In her delirium she mutters in a strange language which only McAlister understands. He suspects she may know something of the murder. A carefully hidden map is discovered by McAlister and Assistant District Attorney Ashton in Morgan's home. While they are searching a young woman are searching a young woman enters the house in the darkness and escapes, leaving behind a green cloak. The name of Jane Perkins, a housemaid is brought into the case and McAlister be-lieves he has a clue.

CHAPTER VI

After our conversation with Ashtor in the morning, which had terminated with a practical declaration of war, on our part, upon him, his visit to our laboratory took us rather by surprise. I think, perhaps that he intended it that way, and that there may have been lurking in the bottom of his mind the idea that by coming upon us in that unexpected way, he might surprise some secret we were holding

"Well," he said cheerfully in an swir to our greeting, "I just met Harvey coming away from here in Mallory's convoy. I suppose with such an waved his hand to include pretty much everything in the room, "you've succeeded in getting the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth out of him. How about it? Is he innocent or guilty ?"

His mockery was perfectly goodnatured, but the depth of his skep-ticism made it possible for Doctor Mc-Alister to be perfectly frank with him. "He is innocent," said he, "He had more connection with the Oak

"He says so himself, I presume," observed Ashton.

Ridge murder than you had."

"Exactly," replied the doctor The telephone bell rung just then and I answered it. I heard a voice from somewhere inquiring if this was Doctor McAlister's laboratory, and on my answering in the affirmative, the voice asked if Mr. Ashton had arrived

"He's here now," I said. "Do you went to talk with him?" Then I turned away and called Ash. ton to the phone. As he started across the room my chief spoke to him.

"I see an evening paper sticking out of your pocket," said he. "Let me have a look, will you, while you are at the telephone ?"

Ashton handed it to him then crossed the room and picked up the

The doctor beckened to me. For the moment he seemed very little concerned with the news, for he turned the front pages rapidly, until he came laboratory. Where will you begin?" to the lost and found section in the eye pounced, like a hawk, upon the

"Found-A green cloak. Owner can have same by identifying and paying cost of this insertion."

"I wonder if that balt has brought any nibbles this afternoon," the doctor whispered.

Then, before I could reply, he gripped my arm tightly, and nodded toward Ashton. "A woman, you say" . . . I heard him exclaim with every appearance of excitement. "Did she identify it?" .

"What sort of weman? Anything unusual about her?" There was a little silence while he listened for the description. Then in an incredulous tone we heard him ex claim: "An English housemaid! And she gave her name as Jane Perkins! Did she identify the cloak beyond a

"What address did she give?"

"What's that? Three-seven-0 Weedland! Why, you idlot, that's my own address! That's The Meredith. And you let her walk off with that cloak over her arm after she had given you that address!"

He waited for no answer, replaced the receiver on the hook, with a jerk, and whirled around upon us, his face red with anger.

far?" he demanded.

I suppose the unwarranted accusahad had leisure to include in such pecially when asleep. Psychoanalysts an emotion. But all my other feelings know that gnashing of the teeth is were swallowed up in astonishment. That one additional detail supplied by Ashton's conversation over the telepoint. Jane Perkins not only had a green cloak with a high collar, but she had lost it; and seeing it advertised as found, had promptly gone and Identified it, and had gone away with It over her arm. But the addresswell, I admitted to myself, that reduced the whole thing to a farce.

For a moment all my belief in Doctor McAlister's theory, in the validity of the test we had performed upon Harvey, in every scientific law I had get de Lisie, to compose a song in felt surest of ten minutes ago, tot- their honor. He wrote the words durtered on its foundation. Some one, ing the night, adapting the music somewhere, in placid security from our from an oratorio, and the song was suspicions, and from the possibility sung with enthusiasm the following of our detection was directing this day. The Army of the North took up ghastly farce and was permitting him the song, which was introduced to self to laugh at us. That girl in the Paris by the Marseillaise battalion and hospital had been shamming; Harvey | became known as the hymn of the | that she has to shake the husband Burbank. had been shamming; Jane Perkins, Marselliaise.

By YORKE DAVIS

WNU Service. Copyright, 1914

who had identified the cloak, was, perhaps, a myth altogether. I could imagine whoever played the part laughing. as she walked away with that cloak over her arm, and picturing the effect upon all of us when we should learn the address she had given.

But to the district attorney the situation had a very different look. He we ourselves were the center of a plot to make him look ridiculous.

when I turned to look at Doctor Me bersome, but that makes it all the Alister. Instead of the indignant re- better." buke which I expected him to mete out to the young man who had just ac-

"You can't expect me to pass my hear it," he said.

"You know altogether too much about it already," said the attorney been so full of other things. hotly. "This precious Jane Perkins of She identifies it, beyond any doubt, as anyone whom you had instructed in advance would be able to do-Identifies it down to a missing far back does the joke go? Did you concern us. find the cloak as you pretended you did, in Oak Ridge, near the Morgan up in house, or was the finding of it part asked. of the game?"

A little gesture of rebuke and protest from the doctor checked him very abruptly.

"No, I withdraw that," he said. "That was an unwarranted thing to say. I believe that up to this morning, when you declared war upon me, ou thought that by instructing the woman to give my own detective my own address as hers you were giving ne a fair chance to detect the fraud. a game of chess. But this is serious

"We realize that as well as yo do," I started to say, but my chief interrupted me.

"Can't you penetrate our fraud a little further?" he asked, and his tone now was openly derisive. "Does it occur to you that Phelps here, with the addition of a skirt and a shawi, might not be a sufficiently plausible Jane Perkins to deceive the astute gentleman you left in charge?"

There was a little pause there, for Ashton was too angry to answer.

The doctor's manner changed as he "What Phelps says is true. We realize better than you do, I think, what is at stake here. We're not trying to thwart justice in the long run. We are attacking this problem in our own way, after giving you fair warning. We refused to guarantee that our way would not conflict with yours. and we told you, in so many words, that you'd do well to keep an eye on You've the law on your side. 118. You've all the power of the state attorney's office, whereas we have no standing at all. If you think we've got the cloak, search us; search the

Still too angry to make any reply, and the next moment we heard his motor chugging away down the avenue. The doctor hurried to the window and looked out after him. Presently a hallboy, with instructions that it be

"We're all right so far," he . aid. "He's gone straight on without turning the corner. He isn't going back to The Meredith just yet. Come along. We'll have no time to lose even as it is. Ashton will have cooled down by dinner time, and when he's cool time for enough to let his mind begin working evening." again, he'll become dangerous."

Already he was struggling into his overcoat. I turned to go to the other room for mine, when he called me and sent me to the telephone.

"I think we had better have a text," he said. "It'll save some prectous time and will enable us to take some of our traps up to the hotel with us." "Traps?" I inquired. "Some of our

Instruments, do you mean?" He nodded. "The chronograph and telephones," he said. "I fancy they'll be all we'll need for any real test had no doubt at all-and on second we shall want to make, but it will be thought I could not blame him-that well to take something else for the purpose of diffusing attention. Here, this piece of heavy artillery will just I got the shock of another surprise serve the purpose. It's rather cum-

The instrument he indicated was one I had never seen before, it havcused him, he spoke very quietly and lng come it only that day from the with a mocking twinkle in his eye, model makers. The doctor was always devising new instruments of one opinion on a joke, Ashton, until 1 sort or another. This one looked interesting, and I should have questioned him about it had not my mind

"You'd better telephone at once," he rours answers my advertisement for concluded. "If this sleet storm keeps the cloak which you turned over to up, the wires are likely to be down

Both of us, I think, would have been a little surprised if we could have known how true that prediction button and a patch in the lining. How was and how vitally it was going to

> "You are going to make some !ests up in our rooms in The Meredith?"

"I imagine," he said soberty, though his eyes sparkled with excitement as he spoke, "I imagine that our rooms will be about the only place where we will be secure from interruption, could see it in Ashton's eye that he meant business, and I'm pretty sure that if we attempted to come back here after dinner and bring anybody with us, our little party would sustain a rude interruption

All the while he spoke, he was busy It would be, I suppose, if this were gathering things together, and as soon as I had finished telephoning, I helped him. Haste spoke in every movement I was thoroughly infected with his excitement, although I had only a vague idea what it was all about, Not until we were seated in the cab, with a sultcase full of instruments at our feet, did he say anything that tended to clear up any part of the mystery. "It was a great piece of luck," he observed then, "we were able to send Ashton away in such a rage. It won't making inquiries about The Meredith." "You mean," I exclaimed, "that the address four-seven-0 Woodland avenue was given in good faith, by a real Jane Perkins, who is actually employed there?" He only laughed and told me to walt and see; but the inflection of his voice and the eager expectancy in his eyes made it clear that that was what he "But," I protested, "even if it were ossible to imagine Jane Perkins as having any possible connection with the crime, it is inconceivable that she Kinley, would go and risk answering the advertisement in order to reclaim the cloak and then give her own address. classified advertising. Once there, his Ashton strode out of the room, not actiontion or argument, but I could see tually slamming the door after him. that my objection had not shaken him eye pounced, like a nawa, upon the tunity standing to decisively enough to in the least. So, perforce, I waited with what patience I could assume to see what would happen when we reached The Meredith,

The doctor turned over our bag to he turned toward me with a long taken to our apartment. Then he led the way straight toward the dining room. It was barely six o'clock, a full hour earlier than we usually dined. and the room was almost empty.

"It won't entirely destroy your appetite to sit down to dinner in tweeds, will it?" he asked. "We really haven't time for frivolities of that sort this

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Broken Heart Cause of Pyorrhea Attacks

nent dentists, the jolts of life and worries loosen teeth and are the real cause of pyorrhea. Keep your soul in men, but there is no doubt that a snug comfort and harmony, he says, broken heart may cause pyorrhea and and your teeth will be free of the the subsequent loss of teeth." modern plague of pyorrhea, Doctor Sachs has devoted the last ten years to the study of the influence of psychological factors on teeth, says the Pathfinder Magazine. He believes that pyorrhea develops most easily in teeth affected by tartar. "I have established through a series "Gentlemen, don't you think you of tests that under strain of emotion have carried this joke a little too and worries tartar settles on teeth much more rapidly than under normal condition," he claims. "Another cause might have made me angry if I for pyorrhea is gnashing of teeth, esonly a reaction of the subconscious mind trying to free itself of burdensome impressions of daily life. phone stretched an already hardly sequently, here too is a psychic cause credible coincidence to the breaking leading to pyorrhea. Most pyorrhea

"The Marseillaise"

"The Marselllaise" has been the French national anthem for over 100 years, since the time of the French revolution. In April, 1792, when a column of volunteers was about to leave Strassburg, the mayor of the city gave a banquet on the occasion and invited an officer of artillery, Rou-

According to Dr. Hans Sachs of patients belong to the depressive Berlin, one of Germany's most emi- type discovered by Freud. Take the depression away and the pyorrhea will improve. It may sound foolish to lay-

Desolate by Winds There lies between Formosa and the coast of China a group of 21 islands, interspersed with innumerable reefs and ledges, which are called the Pescadores islands. According to the investigations of certain geologists these islands have suffered in a remarkable manner from the northeast winds, which blow with violence there during nine months of the year. The original area of the islands has been greatly reduced by erosion, and their surfaces are barren and desolate, so that the wind-whipped group forms a quasidesert amid the green island world of Southeastern Asia.

Origin of "Horse-Radish" In the names of plants and fruits the word "horse" is frequently used to denote a large, strong or coarse variety. For instance horse beans are a course variety of common beans used in feeding horses and cattle. It is supposed that the word was originally used in "horse-radish" for the same purpose; namely, to indicate what was regarded as a coarse kind of rad h.

Good Medicine

A doctor and a jurist both declare that a new hat is a splendid tonic for before taking.

What's the Answer.....

Questions No. 12

1-What crew won the Harvard-Yale two-mile rowing race in 1926? 2-What states were originally colcoized by the Spanish? 3-What army surgeon became sec retary of war; in whose cabinet?

4-How does the beach get its sand? 5-How deep is the deepest part of 6-What was the origin in the theawhat city and what year did it occur? 7-Where is the group of islands which is the unsubmerged portion of a mountain system?

ter of the Astor place riot, which re-suited in the death of 26 people; in 8-What great American novelist became a permanent resident of England?

9-Who said, when he heard of the battle of Bunker hill; "The liberties of the country are safe !"? 10-Are common stocks of corpora tions ever redeemed? 11-What novelist is considered the founder of the American school realism?

12-Who was the leading pitcher in the American league in 1926? 13-What are "fighting fish"? 14-What was the "Flying Dutch-

15-Who patented the first revolver, and when?

16-When was the Panama canal opened? 17-What genius of the Renaissance was painter, sculptor, architect, scientist, engineer, mechanician and mu-18-Where are situated the thousands of small lakes formed by the Laurentian glacier? 19-Who said: "Let me die in my old American uniform, in which ! fought my battles. God forgive me for ever having put on any other"! 20-What are the three leading sources of national income of the United States?

Answers No. 11

1-Capt, Robert Gray, 1792. 2-Three; Harrison, Taylor, Hard-

3-Plants 4-The ability or capacity to per

5-Great Heart cleared the bar a 8 feet 1/2 Inch. 6-Antonin Dvorak, in his "New World" symphony.

7-The Nile. 8-"Endymion" by John Keats.

9 John Sherman.

10-In America, yes; in England, no. 11-Major Pitcairn, before the battle of Lexington 12-The United States.

13-The average human heart weighs nine and one-half ounces.

14-An instrument for detecting the osence of an electric current of measuring its strength.

15-New York, New Jersey. 16-Three: Lincoln, Garfield, Mc

17-Stravinski.

18-Hudson bay. 19-"The Faery Queene." 20-The five-day week.

Nonshrinkable Wool

Supplied by Ovibos The musk-ox - scientifically, the ribos-is one of the interesting animals of the Arctic region. It is some thing like a cow and something like a sheep, but is not a cross, though the name, ovibos, means a sheep-cow. It seems to be a relie of an animal that lived in the Stone age, when the hairy rhinoceros and the mammoth were common, writes the travel editor of the Pathfinder Magazine. It feeds on grass herbs, moss and the shoots of trees. Not only is its meat very good to eat and the hide good for leather. but the wool from its coat is softer than cashmere and it has the advan tage over all other wool that it will not shrink. One can smell the ovibos when it is still a quarter of a mile away, and this gives it its popular name of musk-ox. But the music smell does not taint the meat if the but hering is carefully done.

Stopped Traffic for Duck

Traffic on a busy main road near Bourne, England, was held up for ten minutes while a duck inid an egg. A policeman had halted automobiles when the duck started to waddle across the road. Halfway over she sat down. After she had laid the egg. she continued her journey. The egg was salvaged and the procession of haited cars proceeded.

Milk Without Cream

A cow that possessed "a perfectly adjusted separator" has been reported by a correspondent to the Sydney Buletin. "She gave a lot of milk and her calves were the fattest and biggest in the herd, but for household purposes her milk was useless," according to the correspondent. "The milk could be run through a separator without a drop of cream appearing either in the dish or in the interior of the machine. By no method of milking could she be enticed to give any cream."

Acme of Accuracy

Testing lamps and radio tubes be fore they go out to be sold is a delicate art. A device has now been perfeeted that detects a variation of onethousandth of a millionth of an am-

Highest of Rewards

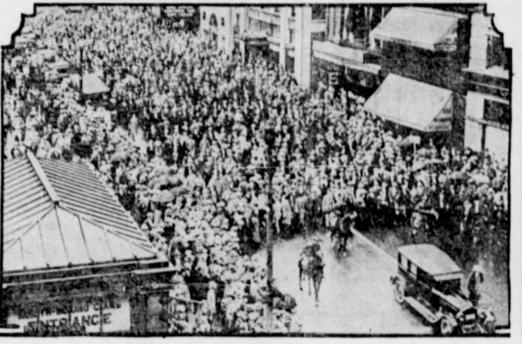

An opportunity to work and serve the average woman. Rather tough, and laugh and love and be lov 4 is a though. If the lady wishes her tonic golden reward in itself and nakes before every meal. The trouble is other rewards superfluous, -- Luther

Legionnaires Begin to Arrive in France

graphed as they slaked their thirst in Cherbourg, where they landed. At the left is Capt. Helen Purviance of ti Salvation army, the original "doughnut girl," who already has gone across to distribute doughnuts to the doug

Funeral of Sacco and Vanzetti in Boston

of the many thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers and mourners following the two hearses In the funeral procession to the Forest Hill crematory, Boston

W. K. Vanderbilt and His New Wife

William K. Vanderblit and Mrs. Rosamond Warburton, who were married In Paris. The groom's application to dispense with the ten days' notice demanded by the Freuch law was denied by the authorities.

At the British War Maneuvers

Britain's new war machine, the mechanised force, had its first intensive field training on Salisbury plain recently. Photograph shows gas-masked members of the infantry passing through the gas area.

CONDENSED IN A FEW LINES

Petroleum was first used as medicine by the Greek philosopher Herodotas, about 484 B. C.

The thatched cottage of Iznak Walton, famous Seventeenth century fisherman, in Staffordshire, has burned down

Automobile stop signs in Ann Arser, Mich., now are marked with fig-

The gambusia, an American fish, is being used to destroy the larvae of mosquitoes in lakes and ponds in Spain, Italy, Germany, Russia and Jugoslavia.

To protect himself against pickpockets while traveling in Poland, T. C. Augustine, of St. Joseph, Mo. sewed fish hooks in his pockets, and ures telling the fine for violating the he caught two pickpockets in Warsaw in this manner, he says, Resen int, &a., was taking a radio course when he had his neck breken in an automobile mishap. His neck was first encased in a plaster cast and now is in a steel and leather body brace, which he has worn while completing his radio course. He has just been licensed by the government r= first class radio operator.

IN NICARAGUA

firig, Gen. Frank R. McCoy, appointed by President Coolidge to supervise the Nicaraguan elections in 1928, has arrived in Managua, Nicaragua, where he was presented to President Diaz by Charles C. Eberhardt, the American minister.

Founded by Columbus

The first European city in the New world, named Isabella, was founded by Christopher Columbus in December, 1403, on the northern shore of Halti, about 25 miles west of the present town of Puerto Plata.

How About It?

"We are not what we think we are; we are what we think," philosophizes an exchange. Why, if we are what we think, what we think we are we are, are we not-or are we?