Charleston in Ireland

The charleston has been included in the annual dancing tournament between cities of Ulster, Ireland. It is not classed as one of the regular dances, such as the foxtrot, waltz and tango, but is given in a special and separate competition. The tournament this year was conducted in Victoria Belfast, by the Ulster amateur dancing championship, and every ama-teur dancer in Ulster was eligible. The first prize was a loving cup presented by the lord mayor of Belfast, when the contest was inaugurated three years ago. Miss Katherine Wat-

Many of the new woolens have tricky way of subduing the design by the shading of the yarns. This is especially characteristic of thick-yarn tweeds, chevron stripes, omber stripes, and small patterned tweeds which are very new in their appearance Some trend to the modish rust and leaf browns, others take on a mellow pastel blending which is enchanting. According to the gossips the Presi-dent was out on one of the lakes fishing when the sky became overcast. The boatman remarked that the dark clouds indicated rain. Mr. Coolidge made no comment. After a while the sky grew blacker and the boatman again remarked that he guessed it was going to rain. Still Mr. Coolidge was silent.

Then came the distant roar of thunder. A sharp flash of lightning was followed by another sharp peal of thunder. Rain began to fall. "Well," said the President's companion, questioningly, "I guess we're going to get that shower."

The President looked at him and demanded sharply: "What are you trying to do, pin me down?"-Los Angeles Times.

Grow Food Supplies for Denizens of Zoo

Transportation of food to the animais is quite a problem in any zoo and at the National Zoological park at Washington an effort is being made to grow provender right on the spot. A large garden is operated not far from the pens and it supplies kale, spinach, lettace, Swiss chard, beet tops and the like in huge quantities. Even the lawn clippings are fed to the ruminants and water fowl, and trimmings from trees-the leaves, bark and small twigs-are accepted greedily by the browsing animals. Recently an orchard was set out and it is expected that soon all the apples tha' can be used will be grown right in the park.

Pleasant Trip, Except--

A Boomington girl started out on a 1,000-mile trip. So optimistic was she that she not only did not carry a spare tire, but did not have any repair tools either.

On her return recently she was asked how she enjoyed the trip which she took alone.

Her answer was: "I didn't have a bit of tire trouble, I told you I wouldn't. And I only ran out of gas three times and out of money twice and I only got held up once."-Indianapolis News.

dergarment-one worn next the skin-"wrong side out," It is an omen of good luck. Do not change it back upon discovering the mistake, for that would bring bad luck. A publication of the American Folk-lore society says: "This direction is intuitively followed by many people who are en tirely free from conscious superstitions," Very old people will tell you that when they were children old people used to say that undergarments worn wrong side out "kept the witches away. This "wrong side out" superstition is a survival of the practice by which our barbarian ancestors sought to "fool" the evil spirit. Joined to that was the idea of the evil eye. By wearing his garments inside out a man distinguished himself, as it were, and the evil spirit particularly bent upon doing him harm failed to recognize him and passed him by. Also the evil eye would be attracted by the singularity of a garment worn wrong side out and let its baleful glance rest apon that instead of upon its wearer. In the far-off times when the superstitution had its birth man, as a rule wore only one garment, that next to his skin. The progress of civilization has increased the layers of clothing upon a man, but the primal superstition still clings to the primal garment to which it first attached itself and which has now evolved into unterclothing. (2) by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

World Highly Prizes Writings of Aureliu

Marcus Aurellus is remembered not so much for what he accomplished as a Roman emperor, as for the little notebook in which he jotted down his thoughts from night to night while in his soldier's tent. He wrote the book simply as a record for himself, not for publication, yet not only did it survive, but it has been translated into 11 languages. It is safe to predict, says the Christian Science Monitor, that translations will continue to be made, for the "Meditations of Marcus Aurellus" is a book of perencial interest. Though through this book one is admitted to the inmost thoughts of the writer, yet the conception of Marcus Aurelius that is formed in this way is not complete. The thoughts, beautiful though they are, are tinged with a certain - sadness. It will be remembered that the book was written when the cares of state were weighing on him, when. after his liant struggle to preserve the civiliation of the past he was beginning to question whether it could be preserved.
