referred to many kinds of battles, "It is a poor sort of war," went on his companion, unheeding. "When you've had enough you retire into winter quarters with all the comforts of civilization, while your enemies starve the mountains."

Captain de Vries settled bimself comfortably in a hollow of the old stone wall which surrounded the governor's palace at Fez. "In fact, Abdel Krim has your entire sympathy," he remarked, as he studied his compa ion's profile. It was very effective, he deelded, against the blue of a Moroccan sky. Sunshine warmed the pale hair to honey color and dusted freckles, fine as pollen, over a skin which had the texture and flush of petals. The face was attractive, yes, but too tecided, reflected the Frenchman. The regularity of feature and determined sweep of the jaw left nothing to the imagination. He was silent as he thought of another woman, the last! She had been very slender, pale, a little sad, she'd had the most beautiful hands in the world. Unfortunately she'd also had a husband with considerable influence in the senate! That was why Gaston de Vries, boulevardier at heart, Parisian to the last cell of a sophisticated brain, was an exile in Fez. "Me. I hate the colonies!" he told himself for the thousandth time. It was the habitual end of all his reflections.

No doubt, they also believe him superhuman. Dear lady, we are not fighting a handful of Berbers, as the newspapers would make you believe. We are fighting a country—the land itself—where each rock is hostile to us, where each ravine is honeycombed with snipers' caves. We are struggling with superstition or faith, with a legend that is the breath of men's bodies, with an epoch, with conditions that are beyond our understanding."

Synthesis of a Bore

The following recipe for compounding a bore appeared recently in the Atlantic Monthly: "Take a mass of unleavened egotism. Chop a cupful of trite conversational chestnuts, shells and all. Add e quart of dry facts, from which all the juice of humor has been extracted, and a cupful of dates stuffed with statistics. Stir in, very slowly, a pint of personal anecdotes from which all imagination has been strained. Flavor with the essence of complete indifference to anybody's Grit, taste but your own. Pour into a mold stamped with your own image and turn onto a platter garnished with plenty of thyme."-Boston Transcript.

The discovery that two different kinds of metal welded together pro duced a current of electricity was the neans of inventing a means whereby there can be determined the quantity of heat, no matter how intense. The current is measured by the voltage and certain temperatures produce certain values in electrical strength, and that is the way the amount of heat is measured in degrees of heat, and this has been found to be accurate.

The principle is applied in a device known as the radiation pyrometer. It can stand at a considerable distance from the furnace or mass of molten metal that is being tested and it will record the internal heat conditions accurately. It is an aid to better steel and Iron products, and as the world rated, should disturb the balance of progresses it will be recorded as one of the great agencies of man to enable him to delve into the mysteries of nature's laboratories, - Washington Star.

The Poor Man's Sport

Track athletics, especially distance unning, is the poor man's sport. He needs only his shoes, his cheap running suit and a place to stretch a leg. Most distance men have no trainers and must prepare themselves until they can make a reputation. They usually work hard all day, either in shops or at desks, and must perforce use their leisure for training.-Herbert Reed in the Outlook.

Cause Injury to Trees

Gasoline and oil have been known to njure and cause the death of trees, if such substances come in contact with the bark, particularly in the case of the roots, says a writer in the Washington Star. The oil apparently penetrates to the camblum region which is a particularly sensitive and actively growing tissue, injuring it beyand repair. It is not necessary that there be toxic substances in the mixture other than the oil and gasoline themselves.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water.
