

HOUSE-WORK TIRED HER

Finds Aid in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Plymouth, Wis.—"I am one of the women taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am proud to say it is good. I was so run-down that I didn't feel like doing anything and my mother told me to try the Vegetable Compound and I did. It did me good. I do my housework and also do all my garden work and I have a three-year-old girl to look after. I have told quite a few others to try the Vegetable Compound and I am willing to answer letters about it."—Mrs. Ed. Deane, R. 4, Plymouth, Wisconsin.

Babel a la Radio
Like all radio fans they delighted in "fishing" for stations far away and when they succeeded in landing a foreign station, such as Havana, it was a cause for celebration.

One afternoon Mrs. B. rushed next door to tell her neighbor in excited tones that she had some foreign station, but couldn't make out what it was.

The neighbor turned in on the same number and, sure enough, a voice was rattling off a speech in a foreign language. Both waited breathlessly for the announcement at the end of the talk.

It was a service in the German language in a church in Chicago.

Ring Had Traveled

A few weeks ago a young woman employed by an executive of a Wilmington (Del.) concern, while mailing letters, removed a diamond ring and left it on her desk. When she looked for it the ring had disappeared. She concluded it might have slipped into one of the letters she had sealed and mailed. She wrote to the correspondents of the day, explaining the disappearance and asking that the ring be returned should it be found. She has just heard from a correspondent in Italy, who reported that the ring fell out when the letter was opened and promised to return it.

Howe About— By ED HOWE

G. Bell Syndicate. WNU Service.

A country wherein the newly rich are numerous is a good country; it has opportunity. I like to see the rich change every five or ten years.

This is justice, equality. It is meanness to abuse the newly rich. We should all be more or less guilty; otherwise we are not getting along properly.

We are all newly rich in the enjoyment of blessings men didn't enjoy a few years ago; it is the newly rich who enjoy the electric light, the telephone, the radio, and dozens of other things.

We are all newly rich in being men rather than apes. Take advantage of your opportunities; there are riches for everyone. If you do not get yours, you are fooling around with foolish things.

An Englishman lately visited this country, and when he returned home, wrote another of those awful books about us. He said we had some good habits, but made much of the charge that we are so unnecessarily noisy. As a rule I do not agree with an Englishman in anything, but there is a good deal in this charge. Why should everything in white America be as noisy as a negro church festival?

If I were a god, or king, I believe I should still have a disposition to recognize the rights of others. I dislike people grumbling at me, and they seldom do if I give them no cause. I would make a poor slave owner, I so dislike their protests. I should rather not be known at all than be known as a mean man.

There is only one thing I can do easily and well. That is to catch mice. If old Hannah tells me there is a mouse in the house, I can bait a trap with a little cheese, and catch it. But with all my other endeavors, I have considerable difficulty.

Your suspicion is usually belief that another may do what you would do under similar circumstances.

In the old days the people were constantly indignant because taxes were levied by rulers, and not by parliament or congress. So, after the murder of a good many rulers, the taxing privilege was transferred to parliament or congress. And taxes have increased ever since.

You say you don't know. If you come to a conclusion fairly and intelligently, you do know. If, heeding experience and such knowledge as is available, you come to a doubt, you at least know a doubt usually indicates an untruth.

In the average small town there is usually room for only half a dozen or so really smart men.

I do not wish to argue with anyone; a fool may annoy me, and a wise man convict me of folly.

You clamor for equality. Your natural chances in life are fifty-fifty. By behaving well, you can increase your chances to sixty, seventy, while the ill-behaved man's chances will be reduced to forty, or thirty.

Information, temperance, fairness, politeness, good work, good health, give you an advantage.

Everyone has a little disposition to rob the other fellow.

Rob him by behaving better than he behaves.

An editor in the East refers to me as an optimist pessimist. It is a good line. If you behave well, and work hard, be optimistic about results; you will seldom be disappointed. But if a town bum wants to borrow money of you, be pessimistic. If a man of no ability promises great results for his community, and offers stock for sale, be pessimistic. Pessimism wins out over optimism. I am ashamed to say so, but it is true.

Can men keep up the old pace of gallantry toward the women? Real women are worthy of it, and properly appreciative, but a lot of tough ones have grown up who deserve the police court rather than gallantry. Will it finally become necessary to revise gallantry, and cut out the unworthy?

A man who is making money never runs away. It seems to be the rule that no matter how much a man thinks of a woman, he will not run away with her if he has to give up a job or business that is very profitable and in good condition.

I am often astonished at the number of clever people now living. Probably we have twenty to one, as compared to a hundred years ago. And now we know better, we should do better. Our trouble is not ignorance; it is carelessness, silliness, meanness, unfairness, all qualities that punish.

When a boy is sixteen and hasn't anything else, he is pretty apt to have a girl.

Men have no opportunity to judge the wisdom of women; women are wisest when no men are around.

The thing that hampers me most in reading is lack of clearness, simplicity; I am not able to understand what the writers are attempting to say. I can apply to the dictionary for understanding of their words, but the meaning of their sentences is beyond fending out. In talking as well as writing it is a great virtue to be able to make your meaning easily understood.

She is being poor, and a trouble to others; righteousness is taking care of yourself, and helping others a little.
