

THE TURNER TRIBUNE

F. J. Rawley, Editor

Issued Every Thursday at Turner, Marion County, Oregon

SUBSCRIPTION $1.25 PER YEAR. Entered at the Postoffice at Turner, Oregon, as second-class matter, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States and the country for which it stands. One nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

There is a new candidate in the field for county commissioner in the person of H. R. Jones, of the Ankeney Hill district. Mr. Jones is a farmer and is solely interested in this section of Marion County, and is an aspirant for the nomination at the Republican primaries. The south end of Marion county, this year, has the chance to elect a man whose interests are in this section. To the citizen who says that the Marion county road funds are equally divided, we say let him drive over Marion county from north to south and east to west then let him form his own opinions.

There are two formidable candidates out for Congress on the primary ballot. The present incumbent, W. C. Hawley, and James W. Mott, of Astoria. Mr. Mott says he is out after Mr. Hawley's scalp. Mr. Mott is a progressive young attorney of Astoria, an ex-serve man and member of the American Legion. He made an enviable record in the Oregon legislature and promises the same faithful representation of the people if nominated and elected.

Mr. Hawley has represented Oregon in congress for the last twenty years and has a hold on the people of this district that will be hard to break. We have the highest regard for Mr. Hawley. He is a man of high integrity and honesty, but it is a question in our mind whether a man, no matter how good he may be, can give efficient representation after so many years of service; nevertheless, we can do naught but recommend both of these men to the people and let them be the judges.

Hal Hoss has the indorsement of 121 newspapers for his candidacy for secretary of state to succeed Sam Koser. Mr. Hoss came to Oregon City as a young man and has worked his way up through the newspaper profession until he has held some high positions in the press organizations and through these offices and his active newspaper work has come in contact with the people of Oregon and the activities that have been carried on, and comes up for nomination well qualified.

There are ten candidates for nomination for representative from Marion county. We are not proposing to tell the voter who to vote for, but we would like to suggest four names for their consideration, viz: Carl E. Nelson, and Dr. W. Carleton Smith of Salem; Mark A. Poulson of Silverton, and W. A. Weddle of Stayton.

There is practically no opposition to the present court house force, therefore their nomination and election seems assured.

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN SUCCESS

Real estate dealing, as it is being worked by the Co-operative Realty Market in Salem, has proven successful. They take a full description, and photographs, of Oregon property, to the mid-west each fall. The broker which represents these puts the prospective buyer in direct contact with the owner. In this way commission is eliminated and the price is down to a minimum. Often times, the brokers commission, which must be added to the purchase price, when handled by a broker, interferes with the deal. Besides this they advertise and display all listings here. In this way the property is put before a great number of people and, in the opinion of the writer, they can dispose of any property that is priced right. Their office is a meeting place for traders. The files are open to every one. Meet there, match your property and make your own deal.

McNEAL-SANCLAIR
Announcement was received of the marriage in San Francisco of Verna Eugenie McNeal to James Sinclair, on Tuesday April 3, 1928. Mrs. Sinclair will be remembered by many Turner people, as she was employed as compositor on the Tribune several years ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McNeal of Aumville and a sister-in-law to Marion Porter, of Turner. Mr. Sinclair is a welfare worker of San Francisco and the couple are making their home there.

This announcement was received two weeks ago, but was accidentally overlooked. We ask our former compositor's pardon for this error.
