

New York in the Time of Peter Stuyvesant

Peter Van Lans, New York artist, is shown here with his model of New York as it appeared in the time of Peter Stuyvesant, Dutch governor of the city then known as Nieuw Amsterdam. The model was from an old map of the district made from surveys compiled by Jacques Cortelyou.

NEARBY AND YONDER By T. T. Macey

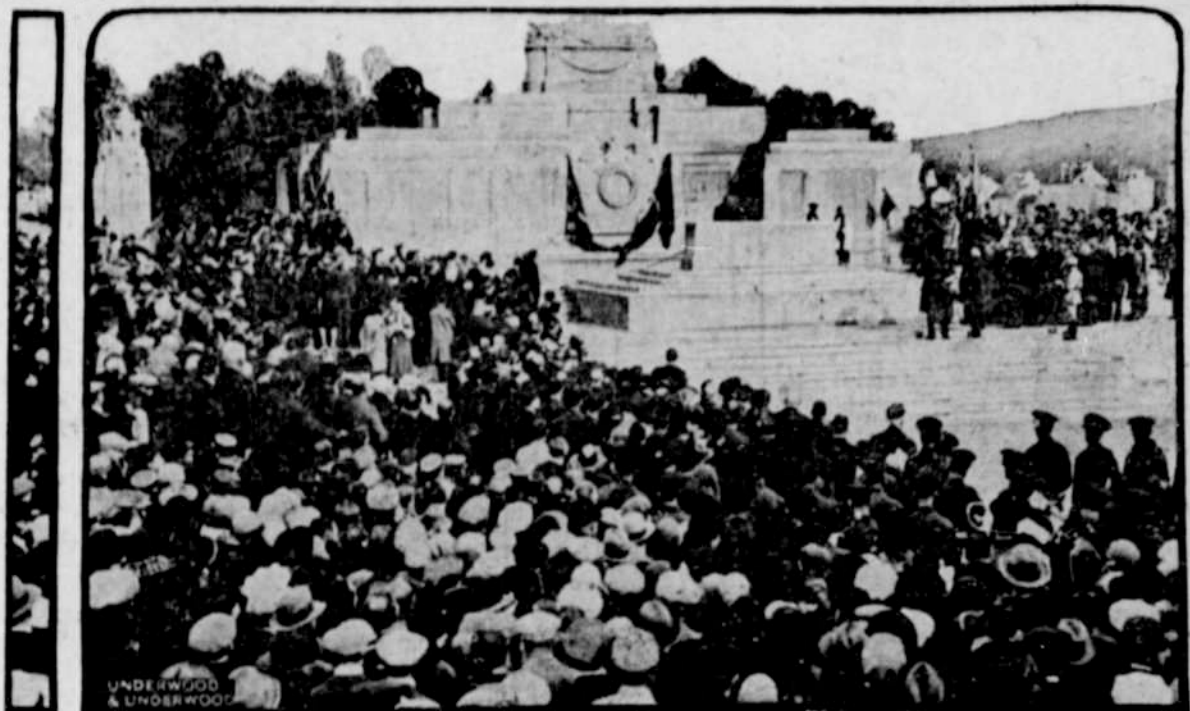

Pier Six
PIER SIX, at the Bush Terminal, in Brooklyn, New York, is said to be the largest pier in the world—being 210 feet wide, 1,250 feet long and double-decked. It has fourteen acres of floor space and a carrying capacity of 500 pounds to the square foot or considerably more than 1,000,000 tons—the equivalent of upwards of 5,000 freight cars of 40,000 pounds capacity each.

A portion of this record-breaking pier rests on land, but the outer end juts out over the waters of the Bay of New York. This latter section rests on piling which were driven down to bed rock which at this point is 70 feet below the surface of the water or 30 feet below the bottom of the bay. This pier was constructed in 1909 and would cost, to reproduce today, about $2,500,000.

Six steamships, each of 14,000 tons displacement, can berth and discharge their inbound or take on their outbound cargoes at one end and the same time without crowding this pier, while freight arriving at the pier for out-bound shipment, by truck, by rail or by lighter also can be accommodated at the same time.

The interior of this enormous freight warehouse somewhat resembles a giant curiosity shop since its holdings may include anything and everything from hair nets and needles to elephants and portable houses that ocean-going steamships may be called upon to transport from one world port to another.

Britain Honors the "Old Contemptibles"

Dedication of a memorial arch erected by Great Britain at La Ferte-Sous-Jouarre, France, to the 3,888 officers and men of the British Expeditionary force who fell in August, September and early October, 1914. In the group at the arch are Lieut. Gen. Sir William Pulteney and Marshal Foch.

St. Marks in the Bowery
ST. MARKS in the Bowery is, undoubtedly, one of the outstanding landmarks of early New York city. It also is one of the few old-time churches remaining in that city which still occupies the site originally selected and dedicated for worship, while the site is said to be the oldest now so occupied. The church is unique. So is its history.

Peter Stuyvesant, the last of the seven Dutch governors, was a picturesque character in early New York history. He had a bowery—a suburban home with a garden. Bowers village was laid out on his ground. In it he built a chapel. He died in 1672. His wife gave it to the Dutch church. Subsequently Trinity church became interested. Now it appears to be a Dutch church with an Episcopal service—a decidedly unusual religious combination.

The present structure quaintly reminds one of ancient days. The cornerstone was put down in 1736. Stuyvesant's tomb forms one of the foundation stones. Its venerable walls are overhung with ivy and aged trees spread their branches over the graves in the side yards. An old-fashioned scraper for removing mud from the boots of worshippers attracts attention as one enters. The interior is restful to an extreme, rich in colorful windows and memorial tablets. A high iron fence separates the church from the adjoining thoroughfares.

The co-operation of the clergy with enlightened physicians has brought about a neighboring soul-and-body clinic where ill of many sorts are treated through a sympathetic blending of science and religion.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

WHEN another Christmas rolls around—and another—and another—your family will still be enjoying this beautiful and sensible gift.

2,000,000 families have Atwater Kent Radio. Many of them made their purchases last Christmas. "We felt this was the thing that would please the whole household—now we know," they say.

You, too, want entertainment without trouble. You want to hear good music and good talks—you always get what you want from "the radio that keeps on working."

All-electric
 If you have electricity from a central station, there are several Atwater Kent models you can operate right from lamp socket. If you prefer an all-in-one cabinet set, with receiver and speaker combined, the dealer will let you try the wonderfully compact Model 52. They're all made wholly by Atwater Kent in the world's largest radio factory—as big as a 15-acre field!

Modern battery sets, too
 "We haven't electricity, but we want good up-to-date radio just the same." Of course—and no reason why you shouldn't have it! Atwater Kent battery sets have the 1929 refinements. You'll recognize them when you listen. Your choice of two models—one for average conditions, one for unusual "distance."

Either kind—all-electric or battery—gives you the best in radio at a moderate price. See an Atwater Kent dealer about that Christmas radio—now!

On the air—every Sunday night—Atwater Kent Radio Hour—listen in!

THINGS WORTH RECORDING

More than fifty languages are spoken in the streets of Singapore. The population of the state of Oregon according to 1920 census was 773,889. Oil which has the medical properties of cod-liver oil is extracted from shark's liver. General Wolfe's last words were: "What! Do they run already? Then I die happy."

Only one-third as many women die of pneumonia as men. Under English law no married woman can be adjudged a bankrupt. Women are the buyers of 90 per cent of the jewelry sold in America. The first baby show ever held was at Springfield, Ohio, October 14, 1854. Ontario in 1921 had a population of 2,933,662; 670,717 were attending school.

Curious.
 In a North side home a mother was explaining "lightning bugs" to her little daughter. When she was through explaining, the little daughter asked: "Do they thunder, too?" Indianapolis News.

Business of Sea.
 The blueness of sea water depends in some degree upon its saltness. The Arctic and Antarctic oceans, which are cold and not very salty, are a vivid green in color.

Nice for Nunky
 Sporting Niece (to passenger, after several narrow escapes)—Isn't it funny, uncle? I've been driving for nearly a week now, but I still get a jolted up between the foot-brake and the accelerator.—Lendob's Opinion.

No White Officials
 Liberia is a republic populated entirely by negroes, and governed by them. While a few white engineers have been employed in Liberia, they are not government officials.

Time Didn't Mean Much to Trailer of Moose

The way of guides in the Canadian woods is most mysterious. Two sportsmen from the Middle West equipped for a big game started out one day under the direction of a native guide. As they tramped through the woods, loaded with their camping outfits, they sighted a moose which took fright at their presence and promptly dashed away.

The guide made no remark but led his American party in the direction in which the moose disappeared. All day they tramped along and at night pitched camp. The program repeated itself the next day. On the third day, the sportsmen began wondering what it was all about.

"Look here, you," one of them said. "What's the idea? How long are we going to keep this up?"

The guide shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, maybe two weeks, maybe two months."

Hard to Realize Vast Stretches of Pacific

The immensity of the Pacific ocean is seldom realized. Huge and terrible as is the Atlantic, its size compared with the Pacific is about the same as a farm pond with Lake Ontario. The Pacific is almost a hemisphere of water, and it is startling to think that, if the whole land surface of the globe could be fitted together like a jig-saw puzzle, the resulting surface would not be as extensive as this one ocean!

A few figures will show this. For instance, the well-traversed Atlantic route from Liverpool to New York is 3,050 miles, but from Yokohama to Valparaiso, a similar southern trend, across the Pacific, the distance is 9,340 miles. Across this ocean's narrowest part, namely, from Vancouver to Yokohama, is 4,200 miles. The Pacific stretches from the Arctic ocean to the Antarctic ocean, and contains 70,000,000 square miles of area. In this vast area are tens of thousands of islands, some little larger than a farm corral, and others which would be called large elsewhere but are dwarfed by their situation.—Exchange.

This Mother Had Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, sallow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the soiling waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snavely, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Right and Wrong

Maurice Ravel, the French composer, visited a supper club in New York the other night. A young man and a girl came out in due course and did a rather daring and suggestive dance.

"That dance is very difficult," a debutante said to M. Ravel. "I've tried it, time and time again, but I don't believe I'll ever be able to dance it the right way."

M. Ravel smiled.

"The right way to dance that dance," he said, "is the wrong way."

Color Films for All

A new cinematograph invention enables motion pictures in natural colors to be taken with an amateur's machine, by placing a filter on the lens of the camera for use with a special film. This filter is a transparent gelatin disk, divided into three sections representing red, green and blue-violet. As the light passes through the disk it becomes separated into its appropriate color group.

No Written Records

Indians have no written language other than picture writing. Their tales and legends were preserved from generation to generation by word of mouth.

The man whose only thoughts are for himself but little use for brains.

Popular Fish Food

We get our familiar phrase "finnan haddock" from the town of Finnan, Scotland. Many years ago the fisherfolk there discovered an excellent method of salting and smoking haddock, which were called "haddie." The name of the town is pronounced "finnan."

Good Business

Jo Ann had just received some shiny new coins for her savings bank from the week-end guests.

"What do you say, dear?" asked the proud mother.

"More money, please," was the candid reply.
