Excitement caused By Missing Boy

Monday afternoon there was considerable excitement in the C. A. Bear home over the strange disappearance of their son Willard. He failed to put in an appearance for dinner and had not been seen since ten A. M., when it seemed evident that he had eaten too many green apples. The house and all buildings were searched but no Willard was found. A searching party explored the oak grove and pasture on the Riches place thinking he might have started to a further field. The family was ready to call in the neighbors to join in the search by five o'clock. Charges were started and the missing boy was discovered hoisting corn east of the barn. He is a bit hazy as to how he passed the day but seems to have slept most of the time in a shed at the edge of the woods. On waking in the afternoon he started work in a corn field near by.

Campaign Going Good

The financial drive of Marion Post No. 661 Veterans of Foreign Wars is going over with a bang. The boys in Salem expect to make a nice little sum to aid them in relief work during the coming winter. The money raised from the blanket campaign now being sponsored by Marion Post will be used for local relief and support of the national home for widows and orphans, at Easton Road, Michigan. They will wind up their campaign with a big dance at the Salem Armory, September 3rd, with music by the Salem Cherrian band.
