The First White House

ALTHOUGH George Washington selected the site for the present White House and every President since him has lived in it, fate denied him that privilege—he passed away before it was completed.

Prior to his inauguration in New York, congress requested the then postmaster general to fit up, for Presidential use, a suitable mansion. The house at No. 1 Cherry street, built in 1770, on what was known as Cherry hill, because a cherry orchard once stood there, was selected. It was "five windows wide," three stories high and not overly spacious or suitably located.

Every room was fitted up in the most lavish style of the day. The seeming extravagance started the frugal folk of the times. An account, written by an eyewitness at the time, declared that "The whole of the first and second story is papered and the floors covered with the richest kind of Turkish and Wilton carpets." The first congratulatory visitors which the first President received here were the members of the New York Chamber of Commerce.

In after years this house was used as a music store and also as a bank. It was demolished in 1856 and the chair used by the president of the New York Historical society was built from material taken out of it.

The western approach to the Brooklyn bridge now passes over the site and one of the abutments carries a tablet which reads: "The first presidential mansion, No. 1 Cherry Street, occupied by George Washington from April 24, 1789, to February 23, 1790. Erected by Mary Washington Colonial Chapter, April 30, 1869."

"Home, Sweet Home"

"HOME, SWEET HOME," that most endearing song which has touched countless hearts, first sung in Covent Garden theater, London, in 1823, was written by an actor-playwright-author, who, at the time, had neither home nor wife, apparently was homeless during most of his life, never married and thus attempted to instill into the minds of those fortunate folk who were privileged to enjoy that which fate had denied him a full appreciation of the blessing that was theirs. And while it earned a rather princely sum for its publishers, the author appears to have gained little financial reward for its production.

John Howard Payne, who was born in 1791, lived for a time during his early years, in a sturdy, simple, homey house in the little community of East Hampton on the southern shore of Long Island, the memory of which etched itself deeply into his sensitive being.

In later life, Payne was appointed consul of the United States at Tunis, Africa. He died on that far-off continent in 1852, in his sixtieth year. Many years later his remains were brought to this country and re-interred under broad-spreading trees in peaceful Oak Hill cemetery in Washington, D. C.

Meanwhile the quaint "home"—more than 200 years old—shingled, weather-beaten, vine festooned, standing with one end facing the street, has been carefully preserved as a memorial to its author.

Lafayette Square

LAFAYETTE square, that seven-acre, park-like place just across "The Avenue" from the home of the President of the United States, was so named by the Father of His Country and first used as a parade ground for troops. Today it is an ideal spot in which to sit and dream on a summer day.

An assortment of trees mottle the sunshine on the lawn, winding walks invite, benches lure; trusting pigeons and squirrels beg; five noteworthy monuments bid for attention—one to General Lafayette, another to Kosciuszko—the hero of Saratoga; a third to Rochambeau, who came to America with an army to assist Washington; a fourth to Von Steuben—who proffered his services to congress and became instructor general of the Continental army; the fifth—a huge bronze casting affair, said to be the first successfully made in America, to Andrew Jackson.

Much of the history of the past century was made in the mansions which have surrounded this plot. Among these—the home and office of our Chief Executive; a former social institution which includes the famous Dolly Madison house; the former British legation where the Ashburton treaty was framed; a venerable house of worship—the Presidents' church; state under Roosevelt, Daniel Webster, George Bancroft—the historian, Commander Stephen Decatur—hero of the Tripolitan war, where, subsequently, a Russian minister and three secretaries of state are said to have lived and another where three secretaries of the navy have resided. Truly, Lafayette square is a historic spot.

Beginning of "Derby"

When the "Derby" was organized 149 years ago, the most visionary had no idea of the extent to which the race meet would grow. A few hundred sporting men attended the first Derby, in 1780, and it was won by Sir Charles Gubbings' horse Diomed. Its present glittering life was painfully absent, and at that time London had no telephone, gas or railway. It was frequently 38 hours before even the larger towns knew the winner. The guard of the mail coach spread the news, and in some remote villages the winner was not known until a fortnight after the race.—London Mail.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

Hitting on All Eight!

Doctor Gives Hint to Lucky Salesman

IT'S a wise man that knows when he is slipping. Mr. R. F. Myers of 711 Rosedale Street, Baltimore, had the good fortune to get his tip straight from one of his doctor customers (he was selling for a pharmaceutical house) and since that lucky visit he has increased his business 50 per cent.

For two years he had been driving from town to town, and naturally this threw his elimination out of shape. He felt himself slipping. Cathartics only made him worse. Then one day he was calling on a wise old physician, and asked his advice. "What you need, my boy," said the doctor, "is a simple, easy, normal way to clean the poisons out of your system—we all have them—and with your kind of work they certainly cut down efficiency. Why don't you try Nujol?"

"Well, believe it or not," says Mr. Myers, "in a few days I felt like a new man. 'What's got into you?'" asked the home office, 'your business has increased 50 per cent!'"

That's the great thing about Nujol. As soon as it begins to clean the poisons out of your system it makes you feel so well that you can almost always do a much better job. Nujol is not a medicine and contains no drugs. It is perfectly harmless, forms no habit. It is simply bodily lubrication, which everybody needs. You, like everybody else!

Why put off good health any longer? Go into any good drug store and get a bottle of Nujol in a sealed package. Costs so little and means so much! Maybe you can increase your efficiency 50 per cent too
