

THE TURNER TRIBUNE

Turner, Oregon, Thursday, JANUARY 9, 1930

F. P. Rowley, Editor

Issued Every Thursday at Turner, Marion County, Oregon

SUBSCRIPTION $1.25 PER YEAR. Entered at the Postoffice at Turner, Oregon, as second-class matter, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States and the country for which it stands. One nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Teachers Make Demands

Among many things demanded by the State Teachers Association, at their meeting in Portland recently, was that a state commissioner of education be appointed to be furnished with commodious quarters and a staff of assistants to carry on research work.

The Hollywood Press (Salem) says that the commissioner of education would incidentally become the educational czar of the state having absolute control of the entire school system of the state. "The meeting did not specify," says the Press, "what it would do with the present state superintendent of public instruction. Probably he would be made the czar's valet."

One thing this move would do would be to increase the already super-burden of taxation now carried by the state at large, levied principally on the farmer and the small home owner. Let us quote further from the Hollywood Press regarding these resolutions.

"One of these resolutions demands that the educators of the state 'unite their energies to liberate the people from their bondage of ignorance.' Evidently the convention had not heard that Oregon stands very high in the scale of literacy."

"Another resolution demands that the legislature take action compelling the extension of kindergarten training to every child in the state. Another resolution demands the organization of a national department of education with a member in the president's cabinet. The educational organization realizes that it has about gone the limit with the taxpayers of Oregon, but if they can take the matter entirely out of their hands and place it under the big national bureau in Washington and a state bureau run by a czar picked from their own ranks, they feel that their graft will come easier." "Another resolution demands the right to take charge of 'systematic and organized recreation' for every pupil from the kindergarten to the university graduates. Another resolution demands 'opportunities through units of administration, supervision and finance.' Very adroitly worded. Just analyze it and see if it does not simply mean more jobs, more money and more ways to spend it."

"Another resolution demands that all school houses be brought up to a minimum standard of construction and be supplied with such libraries, laboratories, shops, gymnasiums etc. 'as may be deemed necessary by the state board of education.' The association evidently greatly deprecates the legends which attach merit to the modest school houses of the past and notes with contempt that pupils in these institutions were unable to secure anything but an education and a high moral character."

With little study and forethought it can readily be seen that these resolutions would do to the taxes if they became laws. This orgy of taxation has about gone the limit. Other states have gone through this same process of high financing and are now coming out on a basis of sound state government. Oregon must follow in the path of these other states and the sooner the better.

Garbage Dumping

It is the object of many of the residents of this community of homes to make it a desirable place in which to live. It can be made such if the right kind of cooperative spirit is used. It will not be a place that will attract visitors if we plant roses in one end of town and dump garbage in the other. From reports it seems that this has been done. Along one block on the main street and around both garages are roses and other flowers which should add to the attractiveness of the town.

On a road leading out of the city to the south there is a garbage dump and most of it in the city limits. This matter should be looked into and if it is continued some means should be devised to put a stop to it. Such practices are blotches on the record of the town and a menace to the public health. Those living within the limits of Turner have the privilege of having their accumulation of trash hauled away once a year and those living on the outside have no business hauling trash into town and dumping it. Let us all work together to make Turner a desirable place in which to live.

Church Day At Turner

The annual church day was observed Sunday at the Turner church of Christ with a large congregation. The pastor, Rev. Ellmore Gilstrap, delivered a New Year's sermon. A special anthem was sung by the choir.

Following the morning services a good fellowship basket dinner was enjoyed in the church dining room. The annual church meeting was held after the good fellowship spread. Reports were made and election of new officers took place. The every member canvas which is now being made is showing a fine and unanimous spirit among the members.

At the evening service good music was enjoyed and another New Year's sermon, "The Goal of Your Life," was delivered by Rev. Gilstrap. The Christian Endeavor was led by two groups of nominated candidates of young people.

Another Big Match Signed By Mill City

One of the best Wrestling matches to be staged in this part of the country for a long time has just been signed by Mill City Volunteer Fire Dept. for Tues. Jan. 14th at Mill City. The contestants for this bout will be Ted Thyne of Portland, and Tarro Niyake of Japan.

Ted Thyne has been the most outstanding light-heavyweight wrestler in the world for the last several years, and by his recent victory over August Sepp, of Seattle, is now conceded to be the champion of this division. Tarro Miyake is considered one of the logical contenders for the light-heavyweight crown, and by holding "Headlock" Al Karasack to a one hour draw last week has established himself more firmly in that position. A match between these two grapplers should satisfy the fans of any community, and if the fans of Mill City and vicinity take kindly to the wrestling game, the firemen are planning on other matches when over high class men of this calibre can be secured.

Matt Matheny, Matchmaker for Abdnay Boxing commission, is assisting H. L. Boggess, Mill City matchmaker, in putting on these matches.
