TURNER DAIRYMEN ASSOCIATION HOLDS MEETING SATURDAY

A well attended meeting of the Turner Dairy Cooperative Association held in the high school auditorium Saturday afternoon attested to the interest being shown in the state-wide organization being formed. The Turner association will be a unit of the state organization which will start to function sometime during the summer. At the meeting Saturday Mr. Clarke of Salem, director of the state association, spoke on dairy conditions, stressing organized efforts to obtain better markets for dairy produce. The president of the state association addressed the meeting outlining work already accomplished. Sales in a cooperative way is hoped to start by August 1st.

The organization wants the assistance of sixty per cent of the dairymen in the radius of the Portland milk shed and new members are being obtained as fast as the field can be covered. The present plan is to hold out 5 per cent of the gross earnings with which to establish a sinking fund to take care of operating expenses. No plant is as yet anticipated.

The cooperative plan will be patterned after the Seattle plan which has been in operation for the past nine years. That association began with a charge of 12½ cents per hundred and in the nine years their sinking fund has grown to $650,000. Last year they voted $225,000 of the fund to use in the building of a complete plant for handling surplus milk to convert it into the form in which it finds the most ready immediate market.

Officers of the Turner Dairy association are C. A. Bear, president; L. D. Roberts, A. T. Anderson, J. R. Davis and Fred Miller, directors.

PARROT LAUGHS AT CAPTURER

"Bill," the green talking parrot belonging to Rev. and Mrs. William S. Burgoyne, recently staged a heroic escape for his freedom, while meandering about the room. His mistress received a visitor and in attempting to order the parrot back into his cage, the wise bird ruffled his feathers and refused to be governed. He flew directly at the head of the caller, who in alarm rushed for the front door, and opened it, the parrot flying out over her head and lighting in the lot back of the E. E. Ball residence. As this was the first time "Bill" had sought his freedom, Mrs. Burgoyne approached him in a cautious manner, and picked the bird up. He thought his escape a great joke and laughed raucously while being carried back into the house. The parrot is very proud of his "family" at the parsonage and lovingly calls them all by name, Mrs. Burgoyne is "mother," Rev. Burgoyne is "Bill," and their daughter he calls "Ruth." The bird is a fascinating creature and besides talking, whistles several of the favorite hymns.

BOYS MEMORIAL HOME MAKING DEVELOPMENTS

The Turner Boys Memorial Home of the Eugene Bible University is one of the most interesting and beautiful services in Marion county, as it gives an ideal home and "big brothers" helping hand to twenty-four fine boys. Mrs. C. H. Jesse is the experienced matron and Rev. Ellmore J. Gilstrap of the Turner Christian church is the promotional manager. Mrs. Jesse has full charge of the details of the home as to the care and training of the boys and their physical, mental and moral development. The boys are a manly group. Mr. Jesse was for some time also in the employ of the home, but has accepted a business position. Although he is not officially connected with the home his experience and keen interest render his assistance very helpful. Willette Jesse, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Jesse, is a senior in the Turner high school and is a great spirit and influence with the boys.

New developments of the farm properties of the Turner Boys Memorial Home are under way. Several miles of new fence have been built and a new barn is being constructed. Spring plowing is being done in preparation for crops to be put in. All of this work is interesting to the boys who are looking forward to a profitable and enjoyable time this summer. The community is coming to have a great pride in this splendid work being done at the boys home.
