WEST STAYTON

WANTED—By the West Stayton school board, one old well-worn dry goods box and one nail key to be used for a teacher's desk and chair in our chicken coop we are repairing for a school room. The box and key must be old, as anything new or modern is not wanted by the district.

Mr. Kendrick, who is running the Stayton hospital, has bought the Gonsaule's farm recently. He intends to build some time in the future.

Mrs. Royse was a caller at the Chamberlain home this week.

Any dairyman, poultry raiser, or farmer having any old cow sheds, hen coops, or pig huts, which they wish to dispose of might do well to see the school board at West Stayton. The board must continue to make more room for students, and not wishing to avail themselves of the opportunities offered them by nearby districts, are in the market for all of the aforementioned articles. Of course, they must be old and unsanitary so as to conform to the rest of their equipment, as anything near new or modern might show what they already have up to a poor advantage.

If you believe in the good old days, of the ox cart and tallow candle, or the later times when honest Abe was studying by the light from the fireplace, or when you used to attend school at the little red school house, then come to West Stayton, for we can sure boast of the relics of by-gone days in the way of school buildings and equipment, or lack of the same. But if you are at all progressive and believe in modern ways and wish to live and have things like other communities have, and if you want your children to have the advantages that the children of adjoining communities have and go to school under at least sanitary conditions, then you'd better investigate conditions before coming here to live.

While on his way to work the other morning about 4:30, Ben Chamberlain encountered a China pheasant who entered Ben's car via the windshield. Ben now has a claim against the state game commission for $4.50 for another windshield, or he may decide to run opposition to Amos and Andy with a fresh air taxi cab.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Chamberlain and family visited friends near Mill City, Sunday.

Dewey and Calvin Dively and John and August Kittson were in the West Stayton district Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashe and family went to Corvallis, Sunday. Mrs. Ashe's brother, Mr. Kelly, went with them. They visited their aunt who lives in Corvallis before returning home.

West Stayton Community club held its first meeting Monday evening. As it was a very foggy night there were only a few out. The meeting was called Monday night as Tuesday, the regular meeting night, was election.

Tuesday night a small but enthusiastic crowd met at Darley's office and talked over matters pertaining to the good of the community and other things in general. After some discussion from different ones a club was formed, to be known as the West Stayton Growers club, which is to take care of the problems that come up in the raising and disposing of the crops that are raised in this neighborhood. All seemed in favor of putting more life in the community club and a meeting will be held in the near future to talk over ways and means.

The school board held a special meeting Monday night to decide what to do to relieve the crowded condition of the school. There are 80 pupils enrolled and more to come in later. After some discussion it was decided to remodel the small house owned by Mr. Haynes and put the first and second grades there for the rest of this term.

Mr. Stahl, who has been visiting in California for the last two weeks, returned home Tuesday afternoon.

Hallowe'en passed very quietly at this place with little done in the way of Hallowe'en pranks. Several groups were out but just having a good time.
