

Silage Excellent for Winter Dairy Feeding

With the exception of legumes in the dairy ration, there is nothing that will make as much improvement or help as much in winter feeding as silage.

"Silage is of advantage in dairy feeding, for it furnishes succulence. It is as nearly an approach to summer pasture as it is possible to get," according to J. W. Linn, extension dairyman, Kansas, State Agricultural college, in way of encouraging the growing of silage for greater dairy profits in Kansas the coming year. "Silage furnishes a cheap carbohydrate roughage with more pounds of food value per acre than any other common farm grown feed."

But to get the most feed per acre it is essential to select the right silage crop for any particular section of the state, warns the dairy specialist. Since it is forage that the dairyman wants in silage and because the cane or sweet stalk variety of the sorghums usually grow more forage yield and the stalk retains more juice or sap, they are usually considered best for silage purposes. Acre per acre, cane will average making 20 to 30 per cent more milk per acre than corn.
