One 'Ting After An Udder

By Max McKay

Hello, people! Whoda we do, whoda we do on a nice sunshiny day—play golf and pick flowers by gum-go, yes sreee. With the aid of several of we'uns we had a big game of golf today, oh boy. It's sure great dope to take off the excess bay windows with—take notice Joe McKinney.

By thunderin' lightnin' that little over size food pocket of Joe's reminds us of two things—one of 'em is a little oak tree just peepin out of the ground and hoping someday to be a sturdy old papa tree and the other is our mustache.

You bet, you know how a little oak acorn will swell and swell and then kinda peek out from under the leaves and say, "I hope I'm a big tree someday, etc. Just like a vest that's too short and pants that won't meet at the top button.

Joe, old top, you'd better watch the old diet pretty close cause we'd sure hate to see you walking around lookin' like Martin Ferray or some of the other big boys.

Oh, boy, we'll get the fish suffered yesterday, poor devils. April 15th ought to be made a holiday for them or maybe it would be called resurrect on day.

Somebody said Lee Barber had extra good luck the first morning and caught 4, while the younger Barber was catching six. Shame, shame Lee, let a little boy like that catch more fish than you.

By gosh, we're tempted to go fishin'. All we need is the tackle and license, yea, we got the bait.

Peetz next time you go uptown after a bale of hay you wanta take along a lot of chains and padlocks. You know the darn things will get out o' fthe back end of that auto of yours.

Burn our pants if we a'n't reminded of another good one. Happy Crume went out into the country to buy herself a wee hog. She put the darned little devil in a guny sack and tossed him into the rear end of the flivver and started home and low and behold when they backed up to the pig mansion Mr. Hog was nowhere to be seen. All that was left was a hole in the sack and a few hairs on the lid of the car.

Next time Hap, get a pair of handcuffs and slip on him then you'll be sure and get him home.

That's once Briggs and us are innocent, queer as it seems.

What! Trade out of Turner? No! Never! Then why not bring your shoes to be repaired to E. Robinson, located on Fifth Street in Turner, Oregon. Also furniture repairing.

YE OLD DIARY

Up early after much pounding of the cornea or better known as (ear) and many wierd dreams and to eat; then to the city for a drayload of boards and slatts for the roof; return and to picking flowers and playing ye olde golf where much amusement do overcome us—and to find we lost many golf balls which be too much expense. Then to dinner and up again feeling much filled—then to Salem with H. H. and M. Back home to our comforter and to slumbers.

WEST STAYTON

Frankie Snoddy, who has been in training at St. Vincent's hospital in Portland, since last fall is at home for the present.

Mrs. T. Y. McClellan and Mrs. Frank Williams were dinner guests at the home of Miss Mary Walker and her niece, Mabel Walker.

Mrs. T. Y. McClellan went to the Sunday school convention which was held at Turner, Sunday.

Mrs. Hankel visited at the home of Mrs. W. O. Royase, Friday.

Mrs. Snoddy and daughter Frankie visited with Mrs. Helen Gilbert one day last week.

Some of the young folks gave a good program at the school house Saturday night. After the program was over the basket quilt was raffled off and H. M. Snoddy was found to hold the lucky number. Ten dollars
