NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST IN IDAHO

Important Occurrences of the Past Week From Cities in Our State.

LITTLE WORK ACCOMPLISHED

Legislature in Deadlock Over Short Term Senatorship.

Boise.—After re-electing W. E. Borah for a second term as United States senator, the 12th Idaho legislature went into a deadlock in its second week on selecting a senator for the short term to succeed the late Senator Heyburn. Chief Justice Allshie and ex-Governor Brady were the apparent favorites, receiving 31 votes apiece, the remaining votes being scattered. An effort was made Saturday night to settle the contest, but these efforts ended by producing apparently greater complications than ever before, and the legislature adjourned until Monday.

New Marriage Law.

Representative Koelsch of Ada county has introduced in the house a bill regulating marriages, which is attracting widespread attention among the women.

The Koelsch bill provides that in all cases the marriage license will not be granted until 15 days after the application is made with the recorder, and that during that time the recorder must advertise the application in at least two issues of a newspaper. Also the applicants for marriage must produce the certificate of a physician that they are not idiotic, insane, or addicted to the use of drugs, or the excessive use of liquor, or that they are not afflicted with any contagious diseases.

Another provision of the law is the raising of the age limit of males to 21 years. Heretofore the law has been that any person, male or female, over 18 could secure a license. Under this law the female limit remains at 18 years.

Abolish Immigration Commissioner.

The abolishment of the office of state immigration commissioner is sought by house joint resolution No. 5, introduced in the house by Representative Lewis of Canyon. HEINZE LOSES SUIT.

Judge Holds Side Line Becomes End Line When Vein Crosses It.

Wallace.—Judge W. Woods, of the district court, rendered his decision in favor of the defendants, the Ontario Mining company, in the suit brought by the Stewart Mining company, of which F. Augustus Heinze is the head. Heinze attorneys gave notice that they would move for a new trial.

In his decision Judge Woods said: "I have determined in favor of the defendants in this action. There may be some little dispute about the apex of that vein, but there is no question in my mind as to its course and there is no question in my mind as to the law of the case.

"I have a settled conviction, which it will take a decision of the supreme court of the United States to remove, that when a vein crosses a side line on its course that side line becomes the issue and that it is the end line of that claim where it crosses, whether it crossed both side lines or not, and it is upon that ground chiefly that I award the decision to the defendants."

WOULD RESULT IN RECLAIMING 1,000,000 ACRES

The recent irrigation congress which was held in Portland recommended such changes and progress in reclamation matters as to bring from John H. Lewis, state engineer, the opinion that, if recommendations are adopted by the legislature, the state can straighten out difficulties connected with reclaiming 1,000,000 acres of land in five projects, at an approximate average of $35 per acre, and thus increasing land value, without speculative influence to $60 an acre or a total of $60,000,000 added worth to the state, giving home room for 16,000 families. This could be followed by an additional 1,000,000 acres of reclamation at slightly greater difficulty, but with equally valuable results.

The attitude of the congress was expressed in resolutions adopted just before the session closed.
