

MRS. W. H. RAVER LEADS IN THE AUTOMOBILE CONTEST

D. T. Mansker Makes Largest Gain In Votes During the Week.

The first month of the Automobile Contest is over, and the candidates are very enthusiastic. If there is any portion of this territory to which the news has not penetrated, the Argus would like to hear of it. Everyone seems interested for day after day we are receiving inquiries concerning the contest. The firms interested inform us they are just as busy.

New features are being added which will stimulate the interest already shown and will encourage others also. The second and third prizes (two gold watches) are well worth anyone's special efforts. The second prize is a gentleman's 18 size hunting case watch Waltham movement and the third is a lady's 0 size hunting case Elgin movement. Both are excellent watches well worth working for.

Another splendid feature is the special prizes given each week. These are mostly silverware and will be given to the candidate making the largest gain in votes from the day of one count to the next. Wednesday of each week being the day of counting.

The thing which seems to appeal every one is the simplicity of the rules and regulations. Nothing difficult or complicated about entering the race and after one has entered there are no confusing details.

Really about the only thing the candidate should bear in mind at this time is that the nominations close July 15th: that each dollar subscription to the Argus carries 1000 votes each dollar in cash trade at either of these stores carries 200 votes and every dollar on old accounts doubles that amount making 400 votes.

Candidates should also bear in mind that Wednesday of each week is bargain day at the Ontario Furniture Co., Ontario Hardware Co., Bermele Drug Co. and Newton's Shoe Store and votes will be given at the rate of 400 to the dollar.

CANDIDATE IS THE GENERAL

Each candidate in this contest may well be likened to a general. Such then she really is for all candidates have friends who are interested in their success. These friends, however, are comparable to the rank and file of the army --- without a general or organizer half their efficiency is lost. It is the part of the candidates to organize their friends by their own personal efforts.

The success of the candidate depends on the degree to which that candidate can interest her friend and it should be remembered by all candidates that the world loves a Tryer. Show your friends that you are interested and they will rally to your support like an army to its leader. Go about your campaign in a half-hearted, lack-a-dasical fashion and your attitude will surely find reflection in your friends. Take your candidacy in earnest! If you do not no one else will.

EASY TO GET SUBSCRIPTIONS

"Why, I didn't know you were in this contest until I saw your name," is the surprised and expressive greeting of many friends of candidates when they are met first time after a candidate's name has appeared in the list of contestants. This manifest interest means that they wish to see you win and will gladly do what they can to help you. This is why it is best to enter the race as early as possible. Enter before your friends are helping someone else.

It doesn't cost one cent to enter; it costs your friends nothing to vote for you. It is all a matter of the amount of energy you are willing to put into your campaign. Subscriptions are easy to obtain. Everyone knows that the Argus prints all the news all the time. Its circle of friends is increasing more rapidly than ever since the contest began and the Argus takes this opportunity of assuring its many friends that its policy will continue to be in the future as in the past, "All the news all the time." This policy on the part of the Argus is so well known that it is not a difficult matter to secure subscriptions. Nor is it difficult to induce people to trade with the business firms in this contest. The quality of the goods they sell is so well known to be the best at all times that the work of the candidates in this line is made particularly easy.

DONT FORGET

Don't forget for a minute that it is the active candidate who is going to win. A candidate should not be content with merely seeing that the votes received from trade with the business firms or from subscriptions to the Argus are cast for them, but they should take the due bills and the subscription blanks and go to work actively on their own account. Do not float on your oars and trust to your friends to do it all.

Obituary

James Murphy was born in Waxedford county, Ireland, October 11th, 1828, and died in Ontario, Oregon, June 25th, 1913, at the age of 84 years. Death was caused by cancer of the throat.

During his early life he was rather self reliant, being without family ties and free to travel at his own will, he found it easy to supply the necessities for his comfort until he was seriously handicapped by the burden of years. About 23 years ago the H. A. Chapman family found him struggling for an existence without means. They freely opened the doors of their home and from that time on to his death he was the fortunate recipient of their kind hospitality.

He was without the claim of relationship upon them, however they cared for him as tenderly and patiently as if a member of the family, receiving no other recompense for their service than the consciousness of performing a Christian duty, and the thankful expressions of the one befriended.

James Murphy has gone to his rest. He will no longer need the ministry of kind and willing hands nor the encouragement of cheering words, but the Father who sees the sparrow fall and rewards the beneficent hand that gives the cup of cold water, will also take notice of the deeds and acts of those who made life easy and comfortable for him in his declining years.

The funeral services were held from the Congregational church Thursday afternoon, Rev. Koenig in charge. Interment in the Ontario cemetery. Rev. Koenig.
