

HUSTLE IS NOW THE WORD.

YOU GET WHAT YOU EARN

D. T. Mansker Carries Away Special Prize This Week.

Nobody stands still in this life. We either advance or go backwards. The candidates entered in the contest will either advance during the coming week or they will find that lack of energy is their own handicap.

To the hustlers go the rewards. The difference between a hustler and a shirker is that the former gets what he earns, while the latter earns exactly what he fails to get. Today is not going to be wasted by people who earnestly desire to see their favorite contestant win one of the prizes. Tomorrow will be the same and the contestants themselves are going to bend every effort toward making a success of this week. The only point needing emphasis, therefore, is the necessity of turning in the subscriptions so that the votes on them may immediately be issued in your favor. All subscriptions must be paid in advance. No subscription will be taken for less than six months.

Anyone who is not now a regular subscriber to the Argus and who was not a subscriber at the time this contest started is a new reader.

Are you out of subscription blanks? If so, drop a request to the Contest Manager for a new supply, which will be enough to carry you through a strenuous week. Immediate response will be made to each letter and it is the object to give you the benefit of the department's service.

Watch the Argus closely each week and have your friends secure a copy so that they may keep in touch with your progress.

The standing which appears today represents the votes for candidates up to 5 p. m. Wednesday.

SMITH'S FERRY EXCURSION

The North Fork of the Payette has a flow of 500 second feet at low water, which could be increased to about double that by a system of reservoirs and this could be made to produce at least 4000 horse power for each of the hundred foot drop.

Aside from the power possibilities this gorge is one of the grandest in the west and people travel hundreds of miles to visit scenes that cannot compare with it. The hills tower above you for thousands of feet, covered with lofty pines and firs, while the water roars below you as it falls over the boulders and rushes through the gorge. There is over fifteen miles of this with constant changes and the lover of beauty and grandeur is met at every turn with something new to entrance him.

Many small mountain streams come in from the sides and form miniature Niagaras as they drop down the precipices. So much water in motion, with the pines and verdure cause a constant motion of the air, which is ever cool and refreshing.

If you want to camp out for a time, get on the train and tell them to put you off at some good point, where you can find plenty of huckleberries, fish or birds, as the fancy takes you and usually you can find a place to combine at least two of these.

At the ferry there is a large stage station, at which board and room can be obtained at a moderate charge, with a well of the coolest, purest water you ever tasted, and the traditional oaken bucket.

The Payette Valley railroad company expects to have their line completed to the Payette lakes by the middle of September. The rails are now laid several miles north of Smith Ferry and a regular train service will be started about August 15.

Another season there will be service so that one may get on a train in the evening and be at the lakes in the morning, also returning at night, and a day service for those who wish to enjoy the scenery.
