FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn Lady Suffered a Great Deal, But Is All Right Now.

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die.

At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardul, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well.

I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardul. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardul is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years.

Your druggist sells it. Please try it.

1,500,000 ATTEND SERVICES

Remarkable Campaign for Church Attendance is Well Rewarded.

Chicago.—Nearly 1,500,000 men and women—more than three-fifths of the entire population of the city—Sunday took active part in the greatest religious demonstration in the history of Chicago.

The "go to church Sunday" campaign drew regular churchgoers, occasional churchgoers and never churchgoers to church in such numbers that the capacity of every place of worship of every denomination was reached at both morning and evening services.

It was a triumph of co-operative work on the part of churches, public and newspapers. It was a triumph which, according to the statements of men who took part in the campaign, will make itself felt in Chicago church work for many years.

RECIPE FOR POISONING JACK RABBITS

A Preparation that is Said to Be Quite a Success in Eliminating These Long-Eared Pests.

January 30, 1914.

Mr. E. C. Van Petten,
Ontario, Oregon,
Dear Sir:

Your letter of January 22, relative to the destructiveness of jack rabbits and asking for information on methods of destroying them, has been referred to this bureau for attention.

The experiments in Australia, which gave rise to the general belief that a method of spreading disease among rabbits has been discovered, proved a failure, and at present no such method is practiced. There are but two courses to pursue in dealing with the rabbits. If the community is sufficiently populous to make "drives" over considerable areas of country, i. e., to surround a section, or two and gradually drive the animals into a rabbit proof enclosure, this is a commendable method though too expensive if it is necessary to hire help.

In southern Idaho, where, under the stress of winter conditions, rabbits have flocked to hay stacks and to cultivated fields, we have found poisoning the most practical method of destroying them. We recommend the general use of poisoned oats, under the direction of a competent man in each district. We have found the county authorities willing to assist to the extent of supplying strychnine for the work. The most effectual poison is as follows:

Dissolve one ounce of strychnine (alkaloid) in 1 pint of hot water containing 1-4 pint of vinegar, mix 2 tablespoonfuls of ordinary glass starch in half a cup of cold water and add to the boiling strychnine solution to make a thin mucilage. Now dissolve 1 ounce of bi-carbonate of soda in half a cup of hot water, add to the poisoned starch, and stir well. Add 1-8 ounce of saccharine and mix the poison preparation with 10 quarts of oats. Allow to stand twenty-four to forty-eight hours, mixing occasionally. When nearly dry, stir in about 5 qts of clean oats.

Each quart of the poisoned grain is sufficient for about thirty baits. This amount should be scattered slightly on clean surfaces about the hay stack along rabbit trails, or about the borders of fields. Stock or sheep need not be in the least endangered, if ordinary care is exercised in placing the poison. Valuable dogs might possibly be poisoned by eating a number of stomachs of poisoned rabbits but, of course, it is possible to muzzle such dogs or to keep them at home.

We suggest, as the most practical means for reducing the rabbits, that the residents in each district organize for general poisoning, and procure strychnine and grain. Poisoning is quite effective under any conditions, but the plan should be such that full advantage can be taken of any severe weather, particularly when snow is on the ground, since the rabbits are then driven to the stacks and cultivated fields in great numbers.

We consider it advisable to have all the poison prepared by one man, who should also be responsible for storing it and distributing it to the ranchmen with full direction for using it and caution as to its dealness.

Isolated attempts to poison, by ranchmen here and there, will amount to practically nothing, and the method is commendable only if it can be put into general use. The organized campaigns in Idaho have not progressed far enough to conclude as to the success or failure of reducing the rabbits sufficiently to prevent damage in spring. In all tests by our field men, however, so many rabbits have been killed, that it is plain that vast numbers of them can be destroyed under organized effort.

Very truly yours,
S. E. PIPER,
Scientific Assistant.

BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

The Oregon Irrigation Congress will meet in Portland for its third annual session, Friday and Saturday.

The First National Bank of Merrill has applied for membership in the new banking system.

W. S. U'Ren of Oregon City has formally announced himself as an independent candidate for governor of Oregon.

William Hanley, of Burns, will be an independent candidate for United States senator from Oregon at the general election next November.

Floyd Bilyeu, chairman of the state game and fish commission, states that the department will save about $8000 a year as a result of moving its offices to Salem.

T. T. Geer, ex-governor of Oregon, is considering seriously becoming a candidate for the republican nomination for governor at the coming primary election.

Senator Chamberlain's joint resolution to continue the provisions regarding the marking of the graves of Confederate soldiers and sailors was reported favorably to the senate.

Mrs. Joseph Nusbaum gave birth at the Salem hospital to a baby January 26, making the fourth baby of the family born on that date in as many generations.

The federal grand jury will, it is said, investigate the business transactions of T. R. Sheldon, former president of the First National bank of Roseburg.

The "dry" petition, bearing names of 262 voters, was presented to the city council at Klamath Falls, asking the question of prohibition to be placed on the ballot.

Two hundred and fourteen native Alaskan school children at the Salem Indian school have telegraphed Senator Chamberlain their thanks for getting the Alaska railroad bill passed.

A movement has been started in Polk county to prevail upon the county court to employ a general supervisor over road construction in this county. It is estimated that the employment of a competent man to oversee and direct all road construction and maintenance in Polk county will save many thousands of dollars.

The North Pacific Fir & Lumber company, which is installing a big mill at Banks, will put in an electric power and lighting plant for use by the inhabitants of the village.

Governor West is considering accepting an invitation of the National Civic Federation to speak on "Prison Reform" at a meeting to be held in New York city March 6.

The O. W. R. & N. Co. is showing moving pictures at La Grande, in a campaign of education to show how accidents may be avoided and urging people to keep the laws of the country.

The departments of civil engineering in both the Oregon Agricultural college and the University of Oregon were ordered eliminated by the board of higher curricula.

The Interstate Commerce commission announced that they will give hearings on Senator Lane's resolution to investigate the steel trust freight rebates, dates of hearings to be announced later.

Because he claims Oregon as his real residence Jale Gronick, serving time in federal prison at McNeil's island, denies jurisdiction of any court outside his own district in matter of proceedings to forfeit his citizenship papers.

At the second meeting of the logan berry growers of the Willamette valley, held at Salem, the 100 growers present voted to effect a permanent organization for the purpose of developing the loganberry market and advancing the interests of the growers in every way possible.

Probably the highest price ever paid for an apple tree was the $600 which was paid to an Oregon farmer for a 13-year-old seedling which grew in a fence corner on his farm. The worth of the tree to the purchaser lay in the fact that it yields ripe apples every month from May to November, the fruit being rich in quality and prodigious in quantity.

The people of Oregon will be given opportunity to recover, by vote at the election next November, the use of tidelands in the Portland harbor. An initiative measure revoking the tide land franchise of 1862 will be prepared within the month by Frederick W. Mulkey, chairman of the public dock commission. This franchise gave up land owners of waterfront right to use tidelands for dock construction.
