THE JARR FAMILY

A playlet written for Vale to create sympathy for her in her attempt to retain the county seat; the Vale band orchestra should open with the latest popular song, entitled, "Sympathy," and use plenty of "sob" music throughout, at the close of the performance, a funeral march should be played, create more "tears of sympathy."

Cast of Characters:

"Gentle" Jarr, Father of the Jarr Family, John Roberts "U-Needa" Jarr, Mother of the Jarr Family, John Rigby "Seven Little Jars":

M. G. Hope, J. E. Lawrence, T. W. Halliday, Wm. Rose, Saxon Humphrey, H. R. Dunlop and George E. Davis, Chairman, Ex-Executive Committee of the Vale "Taxeaters League."

Act I. Scene 1.

(Colloquy between "Gentle Jarr and "U-Needa Jarr": (Scene: The Enterprise office at Vale; A. D. 1914). "Gentle Jarr: I am glad that you have come back to me, mother, to help me slander them guys in Ontario what wants to move the only means of livelihood what Vale has got, the county seat.

"U-Needa Jarr: Yes, I have returned to help you out, dear father, for the sake of our children, although great is the sacrifice that I am making. I was well on my way towards getting rich in selling oil stock and promoting irrigation schemes like Denny Brogan, when I gets the message from Milt that he would put me on the payroll again, if I would only come back and help father out and save our home from destruction and bitter ruin. (Sob music).

"Gentle Jarr: Here come the children now, mother, see how they love you. (The Seven Little Jars all come running in, and greet their mother with thousands of kisses.)

Scene II.

(The Chamber of Commerce room over the Enterprise office, headquarters of the "Taxeaters League," Vale).

"George Davis Jarr: (presiding over the meeting of "taxeaters," called for the purpose of affording relief to the Jarr Family): The meeting will come to order. The purpose of this meeting is to raise funds with which to help Mother and Father Jarr keep their home, the county seat, which furnishes our means of livelihood. All those who have anything to contribute will please come forward with their money, and they will be immediately enrolled as a member of the "Taxeaters League," and they will be repaid by a fat county job after the election is over.

(The numerous county employees residing at Vale all come forward with their little piles, which they turn over to Little Milt Hope Jarr, who puts them on the back and says:)

"Little Milt Hope Jarr: Well done thou good and faithful servants.

"George Davis Jarr: The next important business of the meeting is to rib up seven good excuses why the county seat home should not be taken away from the family. Brother Milt, what hast thou to offer as an excuse.

"Little Milt Hope Jarr: We donated the land and constructed the present courthouse upon its site at a cost of over $12,500 all donated by Vale citizens.

Jamieson Jammer (a ghost) butting in from behind the scenes: And Vale got the farmers and laborers in the county to help her put up a store shell, with the promise of finishing the building and donating it to the county, and repaying the farmers and laborers with county jobs; and after the stone shell had been left exposed to the weather for over two years, Milt Hope Jarr, Jimmy Lawrence Jarr, Tom Halliday Jarr, all members of this club, petitioned the county to finish building the courthouse, which it did, and has expended about $50,000 in patching it up for the last ten years. Now wouldn't that jar you?

"Jimmie Lawrence Jarr: Vale constructed the first telephone line.

Juntura Jammer (another ghost): And the first telephone line was built years before Vale was ever heard of. Wouldn't that jar you?

"Tommy Halliday Jarr: Vale subscribed $20,000 and the right-of-way, towards the construction of the Melheur Valley railroad.

Arcadia Jammer: And Vale put up the money and right-of-way towards the construction of the Melheur Valley railroad, so that she could grab all the interior trade going to Ontario and Nyssa and after trying to blackmail Arcadia and Nyssa into paying towards its construction, finally succeeded in blackmailing $8,000 out of Ontario, and then sold out the railroad to the Oregon Short Line at a handsome profit. Now wouldn't that jar you?

"Willie Rose Jarr: And Vale constructed the Brogan Branch.

And the shades of Brogan Jammer, saith:

Yes, Vale obstructed the Brogan Branch alright; after Denny Brogan had to pay the Little Hope Jarrs as high as $400 per acre for their alkali land, the branch was constructed in spite of the dirtiest opposition on the part of Vale. Now wouldn't that jar you?

"Saxon Humphrey Jarr: And Vale initiated the present work being done by the Government on the Warm Springs reservoir site at a cost of $2,000.

Nyssa Jammer: And after Little Milt Hope Jarr had spent $2,000 in surveys and in traveling about the country trying to induce the U. S. Reclamation Service officials to abandon the "Nyssa High Line Project," and spend all the Government money on a little Vale project, the Government in spite of the knockers in Vale are going ahead with the work on the Warm Springs Reservoir Site. Now wouldn't that jar you?

"Harry Dunlap Jarr: And we brought the Idaho-Oregon Electric Power into the Vale country.

Jordan Valley Jammer (another ghost): And if you can do such wonders why don't you do a little something for us; you fellows in Vale certainly need some electricity to put some life in yer hides, after you have been living off the county all these years. And they brought the electric power into Vale. Wouldn't that jar you?

"George Davis Jarr: Vale citizens have subscribed $20,000 towards the construction of the Bully Creek System.

Westfall Jammer, (another ghost): And what are you in such a hurry about turning $20,000 of the county's money over to Brogan for just before election? Is it because you want an excuse for the existence of all these foreigners and floaters up in this country, which you are going to vote on election day against Ontario? And Vale donated $20,000 towards the Bully Creek Project. Wouldn't that jar you?

"Papa Gentle Jarr: And we will head all those seven excuses for keeping the county seat at Vale with: "Vale Has Contributed Liberally to Everything that Would Benefit Malheur County."

Malheur Jammer: (another ghost): And you must think the whole of Malheur County is right in Vale, because nearly all the county's money is spent there. We pay some of the taxes of Malheur County above 96 per cent) although maybe you don't know it.

Finale: (Vale band will strike up Chopin's funeral march).

The Ghost: Jamieson, Juntura, Arcadia, Brogan, Nyssa, Jordan Valley, Westfall Jammers:

And we are all going to vote for Ontario and the new courthouse and a "square deal" to Malheur county on election day. Vale, Farewell.
