In company with her mother and Mrs. Harry Baker, Miss Hurrell was driving to church, when the horse became frightened at a child playing by the roadside and reared, throwing her to the ground with one line and the laprobe with her. Mrs. Hurrell had the presence of mind to straighten the horse with the remaining line, and barely avoided a serious accident.

Record Crowd for the Opening Day Events

With ideal sunshine, big crowds, good music and one of the most essential points of all, good races, the opening day of the Malheur County fair was a huge success from every standpoint. The grandstand was comfortably filled the race track fence lined and many automobiles lined behind the crowds inside the paddock fence. It was estimated that nearly 2,000 people were on the grounds. Promptly at 1:15 the program opened with a concert by the Payette band, and from then until the wild mule race, the last event of the afternoon, the visitors were furnished with continuous amusement. All of the events were pulled off on time and as per schedule. Only two young ladies entered the girl's relay race, and both were thrown from their horses during the course of the race, but were uninjured, caught their horses again, remounted and finished the race in good time. Three entries were in the motor cycle race and it was a close race for second money. The wild mule race was a scream from start to finish. Taking wild mules right off the range, and accustoming them to a halter and a saddle and attempting to run a race with them all in a few minutes is easier told than done, and furnishes spectacular amusement for the grandstand. The balloon ascension at the conclusion of the afternoon was not a success and will be tried again today. The trapeze performers who gave an exhibition in front of the grandstand were well appreciated.

All the exhibits are in place now 44 potatoes on it. Mr. Culberson, and the main exhibit hall is a bower of fruits and vegetables. The community exhibits are all creditable to the sections they represent and the visitors can scarcely believe their eyes when they gaze at the boxes of strawberries, huge water melons, peaches, squash and all the other exhibits that were grown in this wonderful productive county. For the third crop off of sage brush land, a Dead Ox Flat farmer has on exhibition a potato vine with

All of the stock pens are full and W. W. Howard states that more entries in this department have been made this year than ever before. A number of herds of registered cattle came in yesterday, some from quite a distance and some that have won prizes at other fairs, so no doubt the rivalry will be keen when they are judged. Oren Nelson of O. A. C. will be the stock judge. Mr. Nelson is a competent man to fill this position, being in charge of the department of animal husbandry at the Agricultural College. Miss Fay Clark, with assistants, has charge of the educational exhibits from a number of districts in Malheur county. The boy and girl winning the prize for the best exhibit at this fair will receive a free trip to Salem where they will be entertained in tents provided for the young people. One of the most remarkable of these exhibits is one of canned fruit and vegetables by Marian Lowe who attends school in a one room school house at Owyhee. This young lady, who is only 13 years old, has canned over 400 quarts of fruit this summer for her family and neighbors. The Big Bend and Kingman Colony schools have very fine school exhibits, many industrial exhibits of livestock raised by the boys, as well as the ones prepared by the young ladies. The manual training department of the Vale high school has put an exhibit in that everyone
