STILL WATERS

A quaint comedy mingled with a delightful romance

THE WEEK IN FILMLAND

Manager S. D. Dorman of Dreamland is fast making every big name in the motion picture world familiar to Ontario patrons of the silent drama. For the coming week, starting Saturday he will add to the number of stars the name of Robert B. Mantell, who has been called by William Winter, dean of all dramatic critics, the greatest Shakespearean actor of America. Mr. Mantell has not long been a movie star but his wonderful facial work and pantomime over the footlights makes him an ideal exponent of the new art.

Mr. Mantell will be seen with Genevieve Hamper in a William Fox production, "The Green Eyed Monster," Monday evening.

"The Masqueraders"

Saturday night the offering will be Henry Arthur Jones' brilliant play "The Masqueraders" in which the brilliant Hazel Dawn is seen to wonderful advantage.

In the "Masqueraders" Henry Arthur Jones, the noted English playwright has achieved the impossible in the co-mingling of comedy and drama. The gay and delightful girl who auctions off a kiss for charity, tires of her life at the inn and marries a wealthy man, only to find that he is a drunkard and a rogue. Trial and tribulation follow rapidly upon each other, culminating in a tensely dramatic situation, in which her husband actually stakes her at cards against the fortunes of the man who loves her.

"Still Waters."

On Wednesday Marguerite Clark, who in the opinion of many movie fans is their favorite actress will be seen in a compelling little comedy drama, "Still Waters."

In "Still Waters" a novel story of circus and rural life, by Edith Barnard Delano, the dainty Marguerite Clark renders one of the most effective characterizations of her entire motion picture career. Beginning as a quaint comedy with a very delightful romance, the story gradually develops into a thrilling drama, which reaches a tremendous climatic degree of power in the rescue of Nesta, the girl impersonated by Miss Clark, from a burly circus master, who has trapped her in a deserted canal boat, wither she has fled to escape his objectionable attentions. "Still Waters," with its beautiful rural vistas, the novel canal boat atmosphere, the reproduction of an entire circus, and its amusing comedy and unusual dramatic strength enables Miss Clark to display in a measure hitherto unsuspected her versatile and bewitching powers.

ALKALI SOILS CAN GROW GOOD CROPS

Clinton Trow Demonstrates What Can Be Done By Proper Methods Results of Great Value.

Several crop trials are being made this year to determine the best crops to grow upon the alkali soils near Ontario. The results have been better than was anticipated, for it has been the general belief, backed by a few failures to grow crops upon this type of soil, that the land was greasewood soil in the Malheur valley.

Clinton Trow, working on one of the Oregon Western Colonization tracts, has been trying white sweet clover, and alfalfa upon some of the greasewood soil, and by using different cultural methods has learned some interesting facts. He was told by many, who thought they knew that he should use the flood system on this soil. Mr. Trow made up his mind to try deep and shallow irrigation also, and to try different methods of applying the water. The results were as follows:

The land that was flooded crusted as soon as the water was taken off with the results that the seedlings were simply choked out. The alkali also was carried to the surface by the evaporating water, and got in its deadly work. This proved that the flooding method was a failure on this type of soil. The land is bare where this method was used.

He also applied the water thru the corrugations intermittently as is the methods on other types of soil, the results were also poor by that method. Under this system much alkali was deposited in places and crusting of the soil also took place to a harmful extent.

His big success was made where the deep corrugations were made and, after seeding, the water kept running in the corrugations steadily for three weeks. A small stream was used, just enough to keep the surface damp. This system worked like a charm, for Mr. Trow has already cut a good crop of hay from this spring's seeding. Two objects were accomplished by this system that made success possible. First the water kept the soil damp until the plants were large enough to shade the ground, thus preventing baking of the soil, and the alkali did not accumulate at the surface so as to injure the plants.

The second object accomplished by the deep corrugations was that the water did not cover the ground, and so did not drown any of the seedlings. Sweet clover proved a better crop than alfalfa, generally speaking, the alfalfa made a good stand in some places.

The successful outcome of these experiments is of much value to the country in general. This type of

THE Prince Albert tidy tin and in fact, every Prince Albert package, has a real message-to-you on its reverse side. You'll read: "Process Patented July 30, 1907, U.S. Patent Office, and that the United States Government has granted a patent on the process by which Prince Albert is made. And it which congeals bite and parch and lets you smoke your fill without a comeback." Every where tobacco is sold you'll find Prince Albert awaiting you in tidy red bags, set tidy red tins, etc; handsome boxes, and in tin humidor and in that clever crystal-glass humidor, with sponge-moistener to keep the tobacco in such fine condition—always!

soil is one of the best when humus has been worked into it. It is now believed that a good start has been made. The sweet clover will be grown and be cut for hay and seed, while its roots will furnish the much needed humus and nitrogen. This will, as has been the case in other countries, open up the soil so that alfalfa and other crops can follow the sweet clover. Mr. Trow has done a good piece of work.
