War Is a Man's Job, Treated as We would Treat Our Business

The War is taking your boy, our brothers, the neighbor's boy, and we are here at home trotting along at the same old gait enjoying life, eating a little less meat, little less wheat, giving a few dollars here and a few dollars there—and then sitting down and plumping ourselves on our patriotism. We are sending the flower of our manhood "over there" to do the work that we are unfitted to do and we are hoping for some providence to intervene so that the worst may not happen, but the signs of the times don't point to any intervening that is going to cut much ice until we have thrashed the stuffing out of the Kaiser who is directing the war against women, against children, against wounded and helpless men.

Give us Some More Liberty Bonds, Please.

Think of that little tad of yours, who used to stand by your knee and fondly follow you every move, imitating you in his baby way, everything that daddy did. He is "out there," or will soon be sent over—lacking comfort—exposed to danger and death—giving his health, his strength his opportunities, his all—fighting our and your battles as you used to fight his. Are we backing that boy up? With all our might and main, with every ounce of energy that we possess—every dollar we own?

Now we will Take Some More of the Liberty Bonds, if You Please.

Think of the picture of Wilhelm, nervous, angry, shaking his head muttering to himself, "I shall stand no nonsense from America" after this war. We will collect an indemnity of Fifty Billions of Dollars from America. Five hundred dollars for every man, woman and child of us, (and he failed to say what rate of interest he would pay) Just think, fifty five hundred dollars right out of our place of business to help pave the streets of Berlin and pay the Krupps for guns for the next war.

We Wonder if There is not some way we can Manage to have some more of the Liberty Bonds

People say this war it not popular. And they are right. It is not popular with us. Not any more popular than life or fire insurance. We hate to pay out money for these things. But we go right on paying it out, because our insurance policies, unpopular as they are with us, stand between us and something that is far more unpopular. Our Government is offering us the very best kind of insurance, in the form of Liberty Bonds, and offers to pay us four and one-half per cent interest for the use of our money.
