

SPECIAL MID-WINTER ECONOMY PRICES

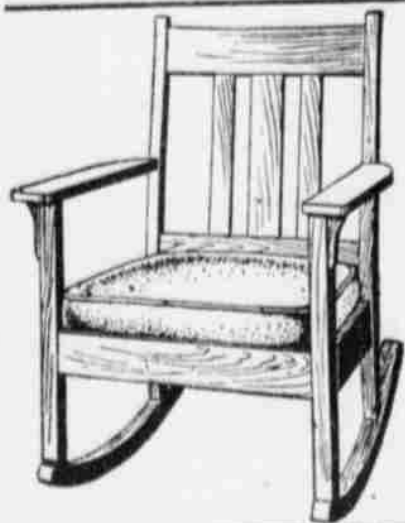

If you are going to furnish this year, the time to buy advantageously is right now, for while the furniture industry is optimistic as to future condition in trade, it is an indispensable fact that prices can be no lower for some time to come. Real economy consists in choosing furniture that is eminently suited to its purpose, that is constructed to withstand the wear and tear of time and that possesses the charm and dignity characteristic of the American home. It is impossible to maintain a high standard in furniture construction without charging prices commensurate with the cost of good materials, and buying furniture just because it is low in price is the poorest kind of economy. We have many odd pieces, discontinued patterns and broken sets that you can buy below the market value.

the wounds that have incapacitated him for service.

It was the battle of the Somme that showed the British that an ordinary trained civilian could stand up and do the work of men who had come from generations of fighters, Colonel Leader tells us. He himself is descended of a line of sixteen John Leaders, all of whom were fighters, and he says he was with the rest of the fighting line of Europe in not believing that a man not brought up as a fighter and with a long line of fighters behind him could be a successful soldier. However, he says this idea has now been absolutely disproved.

Returning health made Colonel Leader feel it his place to train others to be soldiers, since the British War Department declared him unfit for military duty. When the University wrote to the British War Office in the fall of 1917 asking for a man to drill its troops, the Office sent back a list of men that were available and suitable. The University selected him as the best man to have, and his coming is now history at the University. In two weeks he had guns for the troops, had made arrangements for the only kind of uniforms practicable, and had the men drilling an hour a day, with four hours on Saturdays, and lectures three days a week. "A demon for work", was the opinion of the student body after he had been at the University a couple of days.

having over there now? It rains here every half hour. We are near Dunkirk, a resort town, and it certainly is muddy, but fortunately we are not drilling much now, and we expect to move soon.

"In just a few days now I will be entitled to wear a service stripe, having been here nearly six months.

"Soldiers over here stay any old place, places they would not think of having us at home. We are now quartered in a barn, and the people do not even like that. Maybe they will get us out of France some day, and it cannot come to soon for I will be willing to walk out if they will let me.

"But if we don't get home until next Christmas I'll be satisfied.

"I have never heard from William, the I have written about twice each month. I think that he has never received my letters, maybe, bye and bye, he will get one of them.

"The last letter I wrote you was from St. Catherine Belgium. Since then I have been moved from one front to another and have been on the go, always wondering when we would get back, if it was my luck to get back at all.

"Now that the war is over we are wondering about our jobs, but I guess there will be work, tho not as plentiful as it was before the war. But I believe I can get my old job back again.

"If William gets back home before I do, just tell him 'I'm on my way.'"

Dearest Mother and Folks,

I am mighty glad that I can tell you where I am at now. We have been hiking all over Belgium it seems to me. We were to go to Brussels for the re-establishment of King Albert and were nearly there. The orders were changed so we had to come back. I would have liked to have been there but as it is now we are closer home and I believe we will be home or in the states in a few weeks.

You should see the bread they eat. It is made of whole wheat, hardly ground at all but I like it. Just now five other boys and myself are staying with an old man. His house is very warm and he lets us wash our clothes, or "jungle up" on his stove or do anything we want to. At one place we stayed the woman told us that many of the people would have starved if it had not been for the Americans helping them thru the Belgium Relief Fund.

Am sending you a picture of Andenerde, the town where we last stayed and were there when the Armistice was signed. We had taken this town November first. It sure was a shame the way it was shelled by the retreating Huns. It is a beautiful place and I wish that you could see the cathedral.

There are three little girls here about Velma's and Doll's ages. Their names are Esther, Martha and Louise and the baby's name is Elizabeth. Their mother cooked for us six boys our Thanksgiving feed. Guess what we had—boiled potatoes with sauce, three fried rabbits, and bread and butter with milk to drink. It was good, too. They are awfully good cooks here.

These little girls all wear wooden shoes and they make a funny noise on the sidewalk. Their mother, father and big brother all wear them too. Wouldn't we look queer in them? When they go in the house they leave the shoes at the door and walk in their stocking feet or barefoot—and the houses are so clean.
