Saving a Dollar

You can save money in two ways: by accumulating it in the bank and by avoiding wasteful expenditure. We help you the first way—it's our business. But to learn the second way, if you are a farmer, you need

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

For instance, are you—a farmer—buying food in cans from the store? "Grow your own food," says THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, "and save money." And it tells how.
Or are you throwing manure onto a pile where the rain washes out the fertility while you buy commercial fertilizers? "Build a concrete manure pit," says THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, "and put your fertilizer money in the bank."
We like this great weekly's advice on a hundred different phases of farming because it puts more money into our depositors' accounts—into your account. And we believe that THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN's slogan—"Invest one dollar and save a hundred or two"—is good advice for you to follow. Let us care for your order—today.
