COST OF FEEDING LICE CUTS DOWN PORK PROFIT

From $1 to $3 Added to Production Expense of Every 100 Pounds by Parasites.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Feb. 18.—The cost of feeding lice on pigs runs from $1 to $2.94 for every 100 pounds of pork produced—maybe more.

Not that anybody wants to feed lice. Oh, no. But since lice often go in company or as company with hogs they have to be fed unless got rid of.

The lice feed costs on a lot of Berkshires fed by the O. A. C. animal husbandry department were a dollar for each 100 pounds of pork produced. On cross-bred animals of larger type the added lice cost was $1.50. On a mixed lot of Durocs, Poland Chinas and Hampshires it was $2.84. And these hogs in all the tests are said to have made a better showing than they would have under average farm conditions.

The lousy pigs were uneasy and restless and spent most of their time when not eating in scratching their backs and running around. The lice-free animals were contented and quiet.

More protein was required by the louse infested animals, and this is a very expensive food. Its increased use is said to have indicated that the lice sucked blood to the extent that the pigs craved additional protein to make good the loss.

Lice control would have been cheaper.

SEED CORN GERMINATION CUT ONE-HALF BY COLD

Tests Indicate Short Stands and Low Yields Unless Stock Is Carefully Tested.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Feb. 18.—Germination of a small lot of seed corn was cut down one-half by the late cold snap, as shown by accurate tests by the O. A. C. farm crops department. This lot was selected by students, and after having in the open a short time gave a germination test of 85 per cent. After the severe cold spell the same corn tested but 35 per cent, with much of that weak and unfit for seed.

"It is clearly shown that corn not thoroughly dried out is killed by freezing, and every farmer will find it profitable to make germination tests of his seed corn before planting this spring," said John R. Nevius, instructor in farm crops.

The "rag doll" tester is recommended as the most satisfactory for farm practice. It is made as follows:

Take a strip of cotton flannel 10 inches wide and three to four feet long. Draw heavy pencil marks across fleecy side three inches apart, the first four inches from one end. Draw another line along the center lengthwise. Number the spaces, the first two being 1 and 2.

Number the ears to be tested with the same numbers the spaces have. Take 5 to 10 kernels from each ear and place in spaces of same number as ear.

Begin at shorter end and roll cloth around a small stick, securing in center with string or rubber band. Soak for 5 to 10 minutes in luke-warm water and put in living room temperature. Examine in six days and discard all ears showing low germination.

Experience of F. Sprague Adam at His St. Anthony Institution Recounted by Boise Paper—Is Making Good in Eastern Idaho

That Sprague Adam, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Adam of this city, who is manager of the Tremont Auto company of St. Anthony, is introducing novel methods in the auto and tractor game is indicated in the following story that appeared in the Sunday auto section of the Boise Capital News, of which A. F. Riddle, formerly of Ontario, is the auto editor. The Capital News says:

"F. S. Adam, manager of the Fremont Auto company of St. Anthony, was in Boise the first of the week. Mr. Adam has a splendid big steam-heated plant and kept it busy all winter in spite of a spell of weather when the mercury went down to 34 degrees below zero and stayed at 28 below for over two weeks. It was his first winter in the eastern part of the state and he had planned to reduce the force to one man in the repair shop and himself, but business was so brisk that it kept four mechanics and the bookkeeper hustling—six mechanics part of the time.

The Fremont company is distributor for Ford cars and Fordson tractors. Mr. Adam says the farmers in his territory are displaying a far-sightedness regarding power farming that will result in the moving of a great many tractors and power implements in the next few years and consequently in a great agricultural development. Since the country has been winter-locked he has placed eight Fordsons and he expected delivery of 16 more this week.

This activity in the tractor line enabled Mr. Adam to be of no little service to the city and county government, too. Just for the fun of it he hooked a tractor to a road grader and cleared a few miles of streets and county roads. He was in the tank corps during the war and pined for some kind of action similar to bucking mud and trenches. As an outcome of the fun the dealer-driver found himself obliged to deliver three tractors to the county for road work.

"Sale of garden left-overs this spring—cabbage, kale and mustard greens, turnips, parsnips, etc.—may often quickly be made by a little 'want ad' in the Argus," says the O. A. C. Press Bulletin. "This would give your neighbor something mighty good for him, cut at the high cost of living, and supply the kiddies with a pretty penny."

COUSIN OF ONTARIO MAN IS GREAT FIGHTER

New York Papers Hail Gene Tunney as Second Jack Dempsey—Youngster Fought With A. E. F., The Canadian Citizen.

Gene Tunney, formerly of the A. E. F., a young Canadian scrapper, is touted as the coming Jack Dempsey. Young Mr. Tunney of pugilistic fame is a cousin of H. H. Tunney of Ontario, who was himself no amateur as a mitt-slinger in his younger days.

Sunday papers of February 14, under a New York date line, had the following to say of Gene Tunney: Is Gene Tunney destined to fill Jack Dempsey's shoes? At the Newark Sportsman's club recently he performed in brilliant fashion in knocking out Al Roberts, the husky fireman. Of course Roberts is anything but a first-class fighter, but, nevertheless, he is game, has a hard punch and has wonderful capacity for taking it.

The man who tucks him away has to do some hard and heavy hitting. All that Tunney did and he boxed with more than usual common sense in polishing off Roberts he started like a whirlwind, punched Roberts down and dizzy and then, when he realized that he was burning up too much energy he fell back to footwork, feinting and other means of conserving his strength. For his remarkable finish in the seventh and eighth rounds.

If ever a man timed himself to a nicety Tunney did in this fight and because of his youth and inexperience it stamped him as a heavy-weight of unusual ability.

Tunney will be well schooled. With Billy Roche and Jack Denning back of him, bad matchmaking will be a thing unknown to Tunney. A fine looking chap with plenty of weight for the present, he should be a real kingpin. Right now there isn't a newcomer on the horizon who stands anywhere near him. And, best of all, Tunney is a product of army boxing.
