

"THE WESTERNERS" VIRILE ROMANCE OF BLACK HILLS

"The Westerners" which will be the feature attraction at the Dreamland Theatre, Saturday March 6, is a picturization of Stewart Edward White's famous novel of the same name, produced by Benjamin B. Hampton for Great Authors Pictures, Inc., and enacted by such eminent screen artists as Roy Stewart, Mildred Manning, Robert McKim, Wilfred Lucas, Graham Pettie and Mary Jane Irving. The story is laid in the Black Hills in the days of the gold rush and tells in an absorbing manner of the implacable revenge of Michael Lafond, a half breed Indian, against Jim Buckley, scout, who caused Lafond to be driven from a wagon train for insulting one of the white women. Lafond rises to power in the hills, murders the white woman, kidnaps her daughter and raises the child as his own daughter and later using the girl as part of his scheme of revenge against Buckley.

NAZIMOVA TO APPEAR IN ROLE OF "THE BRAT"

The supreme Nazimova in her latest production, "The Brat," has been booked as the attraction at the Dreamland Theatre on Sunday and Monday, next, and the management promises a rare treat to its patrons. "The Brat" is Nazimova's own screen version of Maude Falton's highly successful stage play.

As star and dramatist, therefore, she is coming in "The Brat." The story has to do with the vicissitudes and final triumph of "the brat," a nameless waif on the turbulent sea of life in a big city. She loses her "job" in the chorus because she is too shabby in "making a front."

A novelist, seeking a "type" for the heroine of his new novel, takes her home and studies her. Their friendship, which is at first casual interest on his part abject devotion on hers, ripens into a pretty romance.

WHY "DOUG" LOVES STUNTS

"Some folks get a great deal of excitement from picking up a poker hand to see what they have drawn, but for me, the real pleasure in life is in trying out new climbing and jumping stunts just to see what will happen to me." This is how Douglas Fairbanks says he feels when he was questioned about some of the reckless stunts he does in his next production "When the Clouds Roll By," which will be shown at the Dreamland theatre on Friday and Saturday, March 12 and 13.

While Doug was waiting in the studio for some lighting effects to be worked out in one of the sets, he climbed to the top of one of the studio buildings and jumped some 20 feet into a large hedge fence that bordered the lot.

"How did you know that the hedge would break your fall," he was asked.

"I didn't know whether it would or not, that's the reason I jumped."

THE RUTH ST. DENIS CONCERT DANCERS COMPANY COMING TO WHEATON THEATRE MARCH 17

The interpreting and visualizing of music by bodily movement is one of the vital phases of this present-day renaissance of the dance.

Song and movement are the only two pure personal arts. Rhythm, bodily movement and voice constitute the ground work for all personal art. For that reason we are placing the voice on the same program with the dance visualization and later propose to show the development of the intimate relationship between voice and dance, as suggested in the number by Mr. Rhodes and Miss Niles.

Ruth St. Denis Concert Dancers bring to their admirers the freshness and charm of the out of doors where they have been trained in the art of dance.

Their program is varied, their lighting affects unusual and in key with the compositions presented.

Their costumes, designed by Miss St. Denis personally, are of great variety and charm. The entire program is most cheerful and pictorial.

It is Song and Dance combined; a St. Denis innovation; a combination

When the home builder complained started Mr. Hirsch took the left and started a beautiful bungalow on Second Street. He then started another home for his business partner, Herschel Broome, and purchased one in that section.

About two weeks ago his financial connections back in St. Louis are said to have curtailed his hitherto extended credit. He left for the East to look into this matter and on his return last week told friends that he had made satisfactory arrangements to proceed. So certain was he of this that he purchased additional machinery for his firm here and had it shipped from Chicago.

His last transaction was that of securing a sum of money from the First National Bank which H. B. Cockrum, its cashier, says, was given him on the strength of signed financial statement in which Hirsch claimed to own a large amount of stocks and bonds and property in the East, and had no liabilities what ever. In obtaining this money under false representation Hirsch has probably made himself liable for criminal prosecution. The First National Bank has already secured a large portion of the amount it advanced to him and will be able to work the matter out with a smaller loss.

It is impossible to give in detail the various transactions that have been the subject of conversation and reports, some of these reports, of course, having been exaggerated, but enough is known to make the entire career of Mr. Hirsch one that will be talked about in Ontario for some time to come.

consisted of drafts to and from a man named P. M. Goerling in Wausau, Wisconsin.

In all, during the past few months Mr. Hirsch secured thousands of dollars from various sources in the city. A large portion of this was invested locally and has been hypothecated in rather large sums. Before leaving he turned over all his property to the banks and by finishing the work the local banks which had his paper was actually secured from him prior to departure, neither institution will suffer material loss.

The Ontario National bank secured a trust deed to all the real estate in which he was interested while the First National secured personal property and cash. The other creditors, and there are a number such have not solved their problem, their accounts however are not large.

Mr. Hirsch's career in Ontario was meteoric. He came a stranger last June and worked at Boyer Bros. as a clerk. He said he was a graduate of Washington University, at St. Louis; and had studied for his Master's degree at Yale. Another of his statements was that he was an associate counsel for the Fur Trade, and was a member of the St. Louis bar.
